

Unique Piece Is Discovered

Miss Elizabeth Holahan shows a blue and white printed cotton drapery discovered in the Senate House and which so far has proven to be an original pattern. "It has never turned up in New England and so far is the most beautiful pattern ever found in the Hudson Valley," Miss Holahan explains. She has checked its authenticity with the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, Boston Museum, and Victoria and Albert Museum in England. The material was X-rayed at Boston and discovered to be cotton, about 1760, and was done in the resist dyeing method. The pattern shows a large pineapple, the Georgian symbol of hospitality, a motif brought by traders from the East. Miss Holahan noted that the design was unusually large for that period. Similar patterns in the Boston Museum are "very small Persian types," she said. (Freeman Photo)

State Consultant Requests Loan of Materials or Pieces Showing Patterns; Interested Principally in Cloth Made in 1700's; Work Is Proceeding Carefully

An opportunity for the residents of Kingston and Ulster county to take part in the restoration of one of America's leading public shrines was made today.

The offer, which came in the form of a plea, was made by Miss Elizabeth Holahan, interior decorator, of Rochester, who is consultant to the New York State Department of Education on the restoration of the Senate House, Clinton avenue and North Front street.

Miss Holahan, who works gratuitously for the State in such projects, and who was responsible for the remarkable restoration of the Schuylar Mansion in Albany,

Kraft Heads Work For Boys' Club

Postmaster Is Chairman of Advisory Board; Big Program Scheduled

Postmaster William R. Kraft was unanimously elected chairman of the Kingston Boys' Club advisory board at an important reorganization meeting of the group held in the county judge's chambers last night.

Plans for extension of the Boys' Club program, under direction of Alexander "Pop" Fuhrman, during the coming year, were discussed at the meeting, which was attended by some twenty members of the advisory board. Fuhrman gave a brief report on the history of the club since its organization two years ago, and told of the program now under way at the new clubhouse building on Greenkill avenue.

General Walker Commutes Sentences of Navy Men at Yokohama

Yokohama, Feb. 10 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker, commander of the U. S. Eighth Army, today commuted the sentences of 28 Japanese Navy men sentenced to hang for bayonetting and beheading three American sailors.

Only 13 of the original 41 Japanese sentenced to hang for the atrocities in April of 1945 will go to the gallows. On the recommendation of the Eighth Army Reviewing Board, Walker freed three of those under death sentence, commuted the sentences of seven to life imprisonment and 17 others to various prison terms. One sentence was suspended for five years.

After a trial lasting four months, an Army Military Commission on March 16, 1948, found the group guilty of murdering Navy Lt. Vernon Tobe of Pensacola, Fla., Aviation Ordnanceman Robert Tuggle Jr. of Brownwood, Tex., both of whom were beheaded, and Aviation Ordnanceman Warren H. Loyd of 68-11 Burns street, Forest Hills, Long Island, N. Y.

Newburgh Teller Held in Shortage

Newburgh, N. Y., Feb. 10 (AP)—A 39-year-old former teller in the Newburgh Savings Bank was held yesterday in $10,000 bail on a charge of misappropriating $32,230 of the bank's funds.

Pierre Meyers, an employee of the bank for 19 years, was arraigned on a first degree grand larceny charge, pending action by a grand jury.

Meyers surrendered yesterday at the district attorney's office.

City Judge Anthony J. Avino, who fixed bail, set no date for a hearing.

Human Suffering Mounts in West; Hundreds Isolated

Emergency Acts Increased to Reach Stalled Cars and Trains; Food Is Flowing

(By The Associated Press)
Food and fuel shortages became critical in some communities in the snow-laden western states today as weary rescue crews battled new wind and snowstorms.

Human suffering mounted. Emergency measures were stepped up to rescue hundreds reported isolated—some for weeks.

Rail lines and highways over a four-state area were blocked by heavy snow drifts, leaving thousands of persons stranded. Twenty-nine passenger trains, carrying some 6,000 travelers, were stalled.

Conditions in Wyoming were reported to be the most critical since the first blizzard struck the state January 2. Eleven Union Pacific passenger trains were stalled in the state. Ten others were snowbound in Utah; five in Nebraska, and three in Idaho.

Pushed out of the Gulf of Alaska, the north central Idaho and moved into northern Utah and Wyoming. The strong winds, blowing the mountainous piles of snow over newly cleared highways and rail lines, were expected to extend into Nebraska and the Dakotas by tonight, the U. S. Weather Bureau said.

The blizzard, which has been hit by severe wind storms since Sunday.

Ground transportation was virtually halted in several parts of the blizzard belt but most aerial operations continued. Food supplies were flown to stranded rail passengers at Green River, Rock Springs and Casper, Wyo. At Medicine Bow, Wyo., the storm was so intense yesterday that National Guard vessels—built for snow operations—were halted.

The army and Red Cross placed Sinclair, Wyo., on the "critical" list.

Several Families Out Of

As the new storms swept into Idaho, several families were reported isolated without food and equipment. Trucks stalled on snow-blocked highways were believed to be carrying at least $100,000 worth of perishable goods.

Colder weather hit Nebraska and Northern Plains states. But despite the sub-zero temperatures the Fifth Army's blizzard operations continued. The army, which some additional troops and emergency rations will be flown to isolated persons "if necessary." At Omaha, Fifth Army headquarters announced it had established a relief supply center at Cheyenne, Wyo.

The continuing storms brought forecasts of further losses to livestock by agriculture officials and stockmen. Hay stocks in many areas dwindled and the lack of feed and continued cold weather was expected to greatly increase the loss of animals.

In contrast to the storms in the west and sub-zero in the Plains states, near spring-like weather prevailed over most of the eastern half of the country yesterday.

Some eastern and southern cities reported a February "heat wave" as the mercury climbed to record marks for the date. It touched 69 at Baltimore, 77 at Mobile, Ala., 88 at Washington, 69 at Philadelphia and 59 at New York. In Florida, Jacksonville reported 84, the country's top mark.

The country's coldest weather was in the north central region today. Temperatures generally were below zero in Minnesota, the eastern Dakota and northern Iowa. The mercury dropped to -30 at Pembina, N. D., during the night but early today started to climb and was expected to reach above zero during the day.

Six Bronx Youths Held

New York, Feb. 10 (AP)—Six Bronx youths, ranging from 12 to 15 years in age, were arrested today in connection with the death of a 15-year-old Negro, fatally beaten in a street fight last night.

Three of the youth were charged with homicide. The others were held on a juvenile delinquency count. A seventh is sought on a homicide charge. Police said the dead boy, John Brodington, was beaten, trampled and bludgeoned in a street brawl.

Russian Spy Ring Tipped Kremlin of Nazi War Plans

US Official Is Expelled

Budapest, Hungary, Feb. 10 (AP)—The government announced today it has expelled Robin Sleuss, vice consul and third secretary of the United States legation, whom it charged with spying and smuggling men out of Hungary.

The announcement made a similar charge against Stephen A. Koczak, an American legation attaché, who was expelled before the trial of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty and left the country a week ago.

"They smuggled men, using cars and having bribed Dr. Tibor Gal, an officer of the customs," the statement said. "They smuggled out Istvan Barankovics and others."

Barankovics was the leader of the Democratic Peoples' (Catholic) Party, who reached Vienna six days ago.

Barankovics fled Communist-dominated Hungary after dissolving the opposition Catholic party in spite of what he termed government threat of severe reprisals. He said on arriving in Vienna that he had been told by a person high in the government the price for dissolving the party would be a declaration that it was done because of the Vatican's actions in the independence case.

He said Hatyas Rakosi, the Communist deputy premier, told him he could not dissolve the Catholic Party until after the trial, unless he put the blame on the cardinal.

The U. S. minister, Selden B. Chapin, refused to comment on the expulsion order or the government's charges.

Sleuss left Budapest for Vienna at noon today. He had been given 24 hours to leave, a legation official said. Before he left he told a reporter "It's up to the State Department to comment in my case. I believe." Sleuss's home is in Madison, Wis.

Koczak, second secretary of the legation, had been expelled on 18 hours notice a week ago.

Republican Ladies To Attend N. Y. Dewey Luncheon

Ulster County Delegation Will Go by Bus to National Meeting on February 18

Members of the Ulster County Women's Republican Club and their guests will attend a luncheon and meeting, honoring Governor and Mrs. Thomas E. Dewey at the Hotel Roosevelt, New York, Friday, Feb. 18, at 1 p. m.

The occasion is to be the annual meeting of the National Federation of Women's Republican Clubs at which there will be other prominent speakers besides Governor Dewey, who will stress the importance of women being aware of conditions in the nation and what they can do about them.

In order that the group may travel as a unit, Senator Arthur H. Wickes, Ulster county Republican leader, is sponsoring a bus as he did last year. The bus will leave the Governor Clinton Hotel at 7 a. m. and return early in the evening.

In announcing the event Mrs. Bertha C. Connolly, president of the Ulster Republican women, pointed out that there is a vital need for women to interest themselves in the political structure of the country because there are 1,500,000 more of them than men who vote.

Invitations sent out by Mrs. Connolly urge that members signify by Saturday, Feb. 12, whether they intend to make the trip and how many friends they desire to make reservations for.

Members of the committee on arrangements are Misses John L. MacKinnon, Ward Tongue, Harry B. Walker, Arthur H. Wickes, Frank O'Reilly, and Clarence Kaiser.

President Calls Cardinal's Trial Kangaroo Court

Washington, Feb. 10 (AP)—President Truman today denounced Hungary's treatment of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty as "inimical."

He described the treason trial of the cardinal as a kangaroo court proceeding which will go down in history as a plot against the nation which carried it on.

Mr. Truman went on to say that the matter of whether it was in violation of Hungary's treaties is being investigated and a report is to be made to him on that point.

In American slang, a kangaroo court ordinarily means a mock trial held by prisoners in a jail. The term also has the general meaning of an irresponsible, unauthorized tribunal in which principles of law and justice are perverted.

Mr. Truman also said Secretary of State Acheson's condemnation of the trial as "wantonly Communist religious persecution had its entire approval."

The president discussed the trial at his news conference and gave reporters permission to quote directly his use of the word "inimical."

A reporter asked whether a break in relations with Hungary is under study. The president made it clear he didn't say that.

Li Returns to Shanghai, Is Determined on Peace

Nanking, Feb. 10 (AP)—Acting President Li Tsung-jen returned today from his Shanghai visit with undiminished determination to seek peace with the Communists, one of his associates said.

Li and his associates here were making a careful study of every word uttered by the government's officials in Canton. It was learned, to determine whether there is as some sources insist—a well laid plan to sabotage his peace efforts.

The acting president is making efforts to have the cabinet, or at least part of it, return to Nanking for a meeting about Feb. 15.

This meeting, said one official source, would determine what steps must be taken to bring the two Nationalist groups, one here

Rock Slide Closes Woodstock Road

Woodstock, Feb. 10—Repairs to one of the Kingston Water Department's 24-inch main, cracked Wednesday night by a 200-ton rock slide, will have to await removal of rubble, Clifford Carnright, Lake Hill, said today.

In the meantime, Carnright, water department employee, said today, service would continue uninterrupted through the main.

The upheaval was not discovered until some time later when Clayton Harder was driving to

Two Are Sentenced In Gandhi Death

Publishers to Be Executed, Five Others Given Life Terms

New Delhi, Feb. 10 (AP)—Narayan Godse and Narayan Apte, editor and publisher of a small Poona newspaper, today were sentenced to die on the gallows for the assassination of Mohandas K. Gandhi.

Five of the eight defendants were given life sentences. The aged politician, V. D. Savarkar, who had been described by the prosecution as the brains of the plot against Gandhi's life, was acquitted.

E. R. Badge, a ninth man arrested in the plot, turned state's evidence and was released at the end of the proceedings.

The sentences for the slaying of the 78-year-old Hindu spiritual and political leader on January 30, 1948 were pronounced in the heavily guarded courtroom of Delhi's old red fort by Special Judge Ajit Chauran at the conclusion of an eight-month trial.

The defendants came into the crowded courtroom laughing and joking. When led from the room after the sentences were pronounced they began shouting, with Godse's voice sounding above the others, "we will conquer Pakistan. Long live Hindustan." Then they broke into loud laughter.

Sentenced to life imprisonment were Vishnu Karkare, hotel keeper at Ahmednagar.

Madan Lal, Punjab refugee who admitted setting off a bomb at Gandhi's prayer meeting 10 days before the assassination.

Gopal Godse, brother of the chief defendant.

Kistayya Shankar, a servant. The judge recommended, however, that Shankar's sentence be commuted to seven years hard labor.

Savarkar was taken into custody under orders of the local Delhi magistrate immediately after he was released on his acquittal. He was detained within Red Fort under the Punjab public safety act.

Dr. Parbhure immediately filed an appeal. The judge ruled he had procured the pistol that killed Gandhi.

Given Time Earlier

Godse, who was seized on the prayer grounds of Birla Mansion here the moment of the assassination with a smoking pistol in his hands, was found guilty of five subsidiary charges besides the actual killing of Gandhi. Before reaching the pronouncement of the sentence on the main charge, the judge sentenced him to a total of 13 years imprisonment.

Apte also was sentenced to 19 years imprisonment on subsidiary charges. Besides his life sentence, Lal was given 25 years for abetting murder.

Standing erect in a green uniform, Apte was sentenced to 19 years imprisonment on subsidiary charges. Besides his life sentence, Lal was given 25 years for abetting murder.

Truman Asks Price And Wage Powers

President Says Need Seems as Great Now as in January

Washington, Feb. 10 (AP)—President Truman called anew today for standby power to control prices and wages.

The need, Mr. Truman told a news conference, is just as great as it was when he asked for the authority in his state of the union message January 4.

At that time he sought the right to invoke price ceilings, if necessary, on scarce commodities "which basically affect essential industrial production or the cost of living. He also proposed limiting 'unjustified' wage adjustments which would force a break in the price ceilings.

Mr. Truman said today the controls are certainly just as necessary now as they were then.

The matter came up in questioning about the break in commodity prices that touched off a government investigation of market transactions yesterday.

In Chicago, large-scale buying lifted grain prices at the opening on the Board of Trade today. Corn led the advance.

The President declined to comment directly on the earlier price slump which Secretary of Agriculture Brannan has blamed partly on "speculative influences."

Brannan ordered the inquiry into market prices. He asked the Agriculture Department to get "full information" on all commodity transactions for the first three days of this week.

Stanford Indicted

Counts Are Placed in Case of Wounding Priest in Confessional

New York, Feb. 10 (AP)—Elmer Stanford, accused of firing into a confessional booth and wounding a Roman Catholic priest Jan. 29, has been indicted on nine charges.

Three indictments, announced yesterday, included various degrees of assault and violation of the illegal weapons law.

Stanford, 40, was wounded and captured the day following the shooting in the Church of St. John the Martyr.

The Rev. Vincent J. Campbell, struck by the single shot fired into the confessional, suffered a leg wound. His injury was not serious.

Police used tear gas bombs, and dozens of shots were fired before Stanford was subdued in his furnished room. Stanford, who was wounded in the chest and neck, fired at police with a .22 caliber rifle.

Espionage Took Place Prior to '41

Reds Learned Germany Would Attack Them, Japan Would Ignore Russia

Called Top Setup

American Woman Said to Have Been Linked to Group

Washington, Feb. 10 (AP)—The army unfolded today the sensational story of a Russian spy ring that looted the Japanese Cabinet and German Embassy in Tokyo of secrets that helped turn the tide of war.

The super-network tipped Russia that Germany would attack her and that Japan would not.

It "probably" was the best and boldest ring in all history. The army says so in a 32,000-word report on what made it tick. Gen. Douglas MacArthur sent the report over from Tokyo.

Most of the ringleaders are dead. The master spy was a German, Dr. Richard Sorge. His first lieutenant was a Japanese traitor, Ozaki Hozumi. Both hid their spying under the cloak of newspaper assignments. They were hanged.

But the report says tag ends of the network still may be busy in world capitals. It says an American author, Agnes Smalley, operated in Shanghai and "is a spy and agent of the Soviet government."

This "case study in international espionage in the Far East" reads like an oriental serial from Hollywood. It even has the crime-drama ending with a novel twist.

The man who unknowingly betrayed the spy chain now is one of Japan's top Communists.

The report says that: The Japanese smashed the ring almost by accident, just before Pearl Harbor in 1941.

By then it had picked off the secret it wanted most—assurance that Japan would not jump Russia. Thus, let the Reds rush troops across Siberia to halt the German drive to Moscow.

Information from the ring was of "incalculable" value and cost almost nothing.

Three Japanese who used to live in America were in the ring, one at the top level.

Ring Knew Trend

The ring knew the trend of Japanese-American negotiations in the critical summer and fall of 1941. It had an "in" with Japan's Premier Kono.

But there is no hint it got a tip on the Pearl Harbor raid.

Some second-hand information leaked from the American Embassy in Tokyo.

An American diplomat at Harbin, Manchuria, Vice-Consul Teycho L. Lilliestrom, let two Soviet agents stay at his home and one set up an illegal radio station, the report says. That was in 1928.

At that time, an earlier and probably bigger ring was at work

Hoover Asks Congress, Truman Take Three Essential Steps

Washington, Feb. 10 (AP).—The Hoover Commission today asked Congress and President Truman to (1) outlaw political favoritism, (2) rescue the civil service from "red tape without end," and (3) reward officials who cut the federal payroll.

In a new report on government reorganization, the bi-partisan commission called for these reforms by the nation's biggest employer; it said they would bring "great savings."

Shaw a career service that will attract and hold "men and women of the highest intelligence" by giving new training and promotion opportunities.

Raise pay in the $5,000-and-up brackets and lift the $10,330 salary ceiling to a point closer to private-industry levels.

Require the removal of officers who show "political favoritism in making appointments."

Strip the Civil Service Commission of its worker-recruiting and some other functions. Hand the thing job over to the individual agencies under modernized procedures.

Fix a single pay policy for all agencies, instead of the four now existing. Let congress set the wage ceiling and floor and let the Civil Service Commission set individual scales.

"We cannot entrust the government of today to second-rate men and women," said the commission headed by former President Herbert Hoover.

A sworn foe of "headlessness" in the federal agencies, the commission proposed that all administrative duties of the Civil Service Commission be handed over to its chairman. The commission then would be a policy body only; the chairman would take the added title of "Director of Personnel" on the President's staff.

Even this overhaul failed to satisfy one of the Hoover Commission's 12 members. A strong dissent was filed by James K. Pollock, chairman of the political science department at University of Michigan.

Pollock urged the outright abolition of the Civil Service Commission and creation of a central personnel agency under one director. The majority report, he said, minimizes the shortcomings of the present civil service system.

The study was the second of 15 chapters in the Hoover Commission's full report, authorized by law as the prospective basis for reorganizing the entire executive branch. The installment started reaching Congress Monday; the No. 1 called for the merger of 65 independent federal agencies into one-third that number.

The government's method of dealing with its 2,000,000 workers, said today's report, has not "kept abreast of the times and the needs of the government."

A survey of 500,000 workers a year indicates low morale in the service, it asserted. Yet, it said, officials who try to fire incompetent help often give up because of the red tape involved; one official spent 17 months trying to dismiss an incompetent stenographer; then she resigned.

"Congress should make it possible for the President to issue and enforce rules which will re-

40 Volunteers Get Lessons on Ropes

Sessions on the handling of ropes and the tying of knots were held last night at Woodstock and Esopus in the training school currently under way for members of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association.

Deputy Fire Chief Harold Sanford of the local department was instructor at the Esopus school which was attended by 40 firemen, and Deputy Chief James Brett instructed an attendance of 37 at the Woodstock school.

Deputy Chief Sanford will instruct the firemen at Rosendale tonight and another group at Accord Friday night. The Town of Esopus group, which included Port Ewen, Rifton, St. Remy, Connelly and Esopus companies, will meet for the second session Monday night at Port Ewen, and later sessions will follow at Rifton, Connelly and St. Remy.

Deputy Chief Brett will instruct another group at Highland Feb. 17, 16 will teach again at New Paltz Feb. 18 and return to Woodstock Feb. 23.

The class at Woodstock last night included firemen from Pine Hill, Town of Olive and Big Indian.

To Stay in Budapest

Budapest, Hungary, Feb. 10 (AP).—Josef Cardinal Mindszenty will remain in Budapest prison pending the appeal of his life sentence to the Court of Appeals.

A government informant said last night that the cardinal may be transferred later to Vnc prison, across the Danube from his Esztergom Palace.

The cardinal was convicted Tuesday on charges of treason, plotting to overthrow the Communist government and engaging in black market deals in dollars. The prosecuting attorney, who had demanded a death sentence, objected to the life sentence. So the Appeals Court may increase the sentence, decrease it or order a retrial in the People's Court which convicted him.

This Appeals court, like the People's court, is a post-war creation. It is called the National Council of People's Courts and is composed of five jurists. Four are appointed by political parties participating in the government and the fifth is named by the minister of justice.

In its proceedings it may call upon the defendant to appear to answer questions, though actually only the prosecutor and the defense attorney appear and the court makes its decisions on the basis of documents presented.

(Count Zoltan K. J. Deczay, a Hungarian, told an interviewer in Munich, Germany, last night he had documentary evidence that Cardinal Mindszenty was not plotting to overthrow the government as late as May 14, 1948.

(The count showed a letter he said was written to him by the cardinal on that date saying Hungarians abroad should be warned that he was "not giving any support of any kind, of intention or activity, aiming at the overthrowing of the present government of the Hungarian state, but on the contrary, he takes an attitude against any activity of this kind."

The United Nations secretariat at Lake Success said it had received a communication from the count, but refused to say what it was.)

Mindszenty Treatment Irks Jewish Veterans

In a statement denouncing the conviction of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty as "a shocking travesty upon justice and a wanton destruction of the principle of freedom of religion," Sidney Stein, commander of the Department of New York, Jewish War Veterans, today urged all members of the 285 J.W.V. posts throughout the state to write and telegraph the State Department demanding that an official protest immediately be lodged with Hungary.

"The so-called 'trial' is a poison which if left unchecked would spread and kill the very principles for which so many Americans of all faiths fought and died," Mr. Stein declared. "Not only do we urge that the State Department take appropriate action in direct dealings with Hungary, but we also feel that our U.N. representatives should submit the case to the world-body so that Hungary would feel the entire world's censure and horror at what has occurred."

Russian Spy Ring

in China... But it was far less spectacular.

There is nothing in the report about any tie-in with Soviet espionage in this country. But one name in the report appears rather obscurely in still-secret testimony taken last year at the spy hearings of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Japan released only the barest details about the ring, and the trial and convictions of 17 people at the time. The U. S. Army found out about them after occupation forces moved in.

Many of the minor figures in the ring were released as political prisoners. The army report indicated that maybe that wouldn't happen if the Americans had it to do over again. At that time, it said, few people had the idea that a Soviet spy who had worked against the Japanese might later work against the United States.

Apparently the army report was intended to warn this country to be on the lookout for spying here.

Beware, it says, of United States employees who even show sympathy with the Communist party. It says that "party sympathy is enough to develop a high class agent and spy."

Still, at large, it says, are Missouri-born Miss Smedley and Guenther Stein, a German who now may be an American and who was a temporary but "top-level" member of the Tokyo ring from 1936 to 1938.

Books on China

Each has written books on China. Who's who says they get mail in New York city.

The report says Stein is "a man about whom too little is known." Miss Smedley is described as the go-between who first brought Sorge and Ozaki Hozumi, his right hand man, together. That was in China, where they operated for a time, around 1929 to 1932 and 1933.

Sorge was a professional German Communist posing as a swagging Nazi. He used a newspaper assignment as a cover, and the German embassy in Tokyo was it owned it.

Hozumi was another newspaperman and writer. He became an adviser to the cabinet and confidante of the "brain trust" of Premier Konoe. He was consulted on the highest secrets, and sent them on to Moscow.

There were no Russians in the ring. That was a rule. Mostly there were Japanese and a few Germans.

Lived in Los Angeles

Three of the Japanese lived in Los Angeles for years. The report goes on:

Miyagi Yotoko was an artist and key man. Akiyama Jiji was a translator and the only member of the gang in it for money. Mrs. Kitabayashi Tomio was a dressmaker and the threat that unraveled the whole network.

How they and the rest of the espionage crew worked, and were betrayed by Communist Ito Ritsu, is a tale of intrigue, romance, possible torture and death.

It is a thriller of blinding lights, codes, hidden radios never set up in the same spot twice, it involves fake passports, microfilms passed in cigarette packs, money changing hands between shadowy figures in dark theatres.

Things like troop movements and secret weapons were secondary details, although the ring gathered in plenty of them, too.

Sorge, the report says, was able to keep Russia "fully informed on Japanese military and industrial capabilities and intentions from 1933 to 1941. The Red Army always knew the status of current Japanese war plans, and could make their own plans and dispositions accordingly."

It was a network with "perfect sources" and almost "got away with the 'perfect crime'."

By comparison, the army sizes up the wartime Soviet spy network in Canada as an "amateur show."

While serving the Moscow masters, Sorge cultivated the German ambassador in Tokyo and his staff so well they told him almost anything, asked his advice, and let him see secret papers. He had a camera handy.

Joining as Press Attache

Eventually, he joined the staff as press attache.

Sorge had come to Japan after getting a foreign correspondent's assignment from the Frankfurter Zeitung and three other papers.

He was tall, heavy, arrogant and ruthless, a hard drinker and a philanderer. He had one wife in Russia and another, a school teacher, in the United States.

The report tells of his methods: "After gathering together facts, opinions and estimates from a wide range of sources, the German Embassy, the British Embassy, the American and French Embassies and the Dutch legation, the Japanese War Ministry, the Imperial Cabinet, common household gossip, the press and magazines—Sorge sorted them out."

"Often he asked the opinions of Ozaki (Hozumi) and Miyagi (Yotoko), having come to a conclusion, usually he would test by conversations with the German ambassador, a major general, and the military, air and naval attaches of the embassy."

"He had a high respect for their judgments since they were professional soldiers charged with evaluating just such information for the guidance of the German government."

Another top-notch member of the ring, Branko de Voukeltich, would be discussing the same problems with newspaper friends who had access to the American, French and British embassies and often had semi-official views from diplomatic contacts.

De Voukeltich was a Yugoslav who became correspondent for a French magazine and Yugoslav paper as "Cover." Later he was with the French news agency, Havas.

Ozaki was an author and expert on Chinese affairs. He worked for the Tokyo newspaper Asahi Shimbun. He had gone to college with men who rose to positions of importance in the Japanese government.

He was smart enough to predict Japan's eventual defeat at the height of her greatest military successes.

A highly placed friend got Ozaki lined up as adviser to the cabinet on Chinese affairs. He had access to state papers and the ears of key officials.

Later, he had an almost equally strategic spot with the South Manchurian railway, which was more of a political empire than a business firm.

Information Dispatched

Sorge would take his information, weigh it, check it and then write his dispatches to Moscow.

Some went out by radio, some on microfilm by courier to Shanghai and some to the Soviet embassy.

De Voukeltich's home was used as a photographic laboratory.

A German, Max Klausen, was the radio operator. He had been in the spy ring in China with Sorge and Ozaki.

The report says it was he who went to Moscow in 1929, met the chief Soviet agent, Gloomberg-ott, and installed a radio.

"An American vice-consul, Tycho L. Lilliestrom," the report says, "allowed Gloomberg-ott to use two rooms of his residence, and it was there that Klausen set up his illegal radio set. There is some reason to believe that Lilliestrom also supplied information to his guest."

The State Department register says T. Leonard Lilliestrom was at Harbin starting in 1922, became vice-consul in 1928, moved to Scotland in 1935, to Mexico in 1938 and died on duty Feb. 13, 1943.

In Tokyo, Sorge was under orders to find out about Japan's military force, Japanese-German relations, policy toward China, relations with this country and Britain, the role of the army in political affairs, industrial developments and, above all, whether Japan intended to attack Russia.

Some of the answers came in with the help of people like a soldier providing military plans, a doctor passing along news from patients, a seamstress picking up gossip.

Sorge dealt only with the higher strata of the spy ring. Ozaki and Miyagi ran minor rings that fed the top circle.

There are some parallels to the testimony obtained by the U. S. congressional spy probes—rings within rings, infiltration into high places in government, couriers, microfilms, fugitive meetings.

Some of the little people in the Tokyo ring, the army says, didn't even know for whom they were working. They knew only that they were helping "the cause."

They committed "treason without hesitation."

Results Like These

And the results were things like these:

In 1939, Sorge reported the Japanese had decided they must mechanize all their forces and develop armored divisions.

Early in 1940 he passed along "a reliable account of Japanese output of munitions, aircraft and motorcars, along with a report on the factories making these materials as well as iron and steel."

In August, 1941, he reported Japan had enough oil in storage to last the navy two years. And the army and nation in general enough for half a year.

Back on May 20, 1941, he "flushed the urgent warning that the Reichswehr would concentrate from 170 to 190 divisions on the Soviet border, and on June 20 would attack along the whole frontier. The main direction of the drive would be toward Moscow. The attack actually came June 22."

On July 2, 1941, immediately after an Imperial Council meeting, Sorge rushed word to Moscow that the Japanese government "had decided to push southward into French Indo-China and seize various bases."

In late July and early August he estimated the Japanese "had mobilized a million new men and most had been sent to China or further south—only a few to Manchuria."

As August closed, the master spy learned the German embassy had lost hope Japan would go to war against Russia that year.

Since Ozaki was so close to Konoe, the key man in the negotiations, Sorge got "full and accurate" information on U. S.-Japanese diplomatic sparring.

By October 15 Sorge had passed along "his final sober conclusions that the Japanese had decided to move south and that there now was no serious danger of an attack by the Kwantung army across the Siberian frontier."

Didn't Send Request

He felt, the army says, that his mission was completed and drafted a suggestion that he be recalled to Russia. Klausen talked him out of sending it and:

"Three days later Sorge and Klausen were under arrest."

It happened this way:

Ring members were supposed to have no dealings with Japanese Communists. Mrs. Kitabayashi (Tomo) evidently followed orders. Communist Ito Ritsu the night she had turned against Communism and apparently wanted to get even with her. So without knowing she was one, he told the police she was a spy.

The police picked her up September 28, 1941. By October 18 they had rounded up the whole crowd.

Sorge and Ozaki were hanged.

Bills Proposed in Legislature

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 10 (AP)—Members of the Communist Party would be barred from holding public office under a bill introduced in the Legislature today.

The measure also would require all civil service employees of the state and city governments to take a non-Communist oath.

The legislation was sponsored by Assemblyman Frank J. McMullen, Brooklyn Republican.

He offered another bill which would deny the use of public buildings to Communists or any groups declared to be subversive by the attorney general of the United States.

McMullen declared in a statement that "as a nation we have taken a stand against Communism in our foreign affairs and have appropriated billions to fight it."

"At the same time," he continued, "we should bar these people who owe their allegiance to a foreign ideology from holding posts in our state or municipal governments." He added:

"While we are witnessing with horror the outrageous mind of Cardinal Mindszenty in Hungary, these same Communists are making a mockery of our judicial system in New York city."

R.H. Blood Tests

A bill was introduced by Senator Thomas C. Desmont to require expectant mothers to take R.H. blood tests unless they objected on religious grounds.

The Newburgh Republican said state health department records showed that R.H., an inherited three years later, Miyagi died of tuberculosis during the trial. De Voukeltich died in prison. The report suggests there may have been torture to make him talk.

Klausen got a life sentence. The report indicates he and his wife, a minor and unwilling spy, may be living in Russia. He was one of those freed by the Americans.

Apparently there were other rings operating independently.

The report says somebody in the Sorge ring squealed on Nakanishi Kio, who led a Russian spy ring in China. The police picked him up in Shanghai, he was tried and got a life sentence.

Let out of prison by the Americans, Nakanishi ran in last April's elections and became one of the Communist members of the Japanese Parliament.

And Ito Ritsu is a member of the central committee of the party—one of the four or five top Reds in Japan.

"Can it be," the report asks, "that the Japan Communist Party and the Soviets do not know who really betrayed the ring and so killed Richard Sorge and Ozaki Hozumi?"

blood group factor in human red cells, caused at least 133 stillbirths in upstate New York in a year.

He said many of the 7,000 stillbirths and 8,300 deaths in infancy recorded in the state in 1943 also may have been caused by the R.H. blood factor. He added that a medical survey showed that from eight to 19 per cent of cerebral palsied children are the product of incompatible R.H. factors in their parents.

He added:

"There is little excuse today for disability or death due to R.H. blood. The expectant mother's blood can be typed and if found negative, the doctor is alerted."

"He can combat these cell-killers by corrective transfusions to the mother, if necessary, or by a complete change of blood to the baby at birth."

Would Examine Maids

Maids would be required to be examined for tuberculosis and venereal disease before they could be employed in a private household under terms of another proposal.

The bill, introduced by Senator Louis L. Friedman, Brooklyn Democrat, also would require re-examinations every six months.

A bill introduced by Senator William F. Condon of Yonkers would place employers of one or more domestic under provisions of the unemployment insurance law.

Would Amend Law

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 10 (AP)—Amendment of the Condon-Wadlin Law to define a strike as an act by two or more public employees is proposed in companion bills introduced in the Legislature.

The Condon-Wadlin measure, which prohibits strikes by public employees, was passed by the Legislature in 1947 over stiff opposition from organized labor.

Bills to amend the measure were introduced yesterday by Senator Sidney A. Fine of Manhattan and Assemblyman Edward T. Gallagher of the Bronx, both Democrats.

"Our amendment would make the Condon-Wadlin Law a real anti-strike law by confining its provisions to bona fide strikes by public employees," they said in a joint statement.

They declared that the present law held that an individual worker who left his desk for the purpose of inducing a change in his employment conditions was on strike, and that such a strike was unlawful.

WHY SCOLD THE CONSUMER?

Let us all hang our heads in retroactive shame. For the Department of Agriculture, in its latest marketing report, has taken the public to task for keening and wailing about the price of food. It isn't justified, say the D. of A.

Even as we blush it occurs to us that the department's scolding is a bit late. It comes at a time when most of us are venturing the hope, as we tote up the week's grocery bill, that maybe things are getting a little better. But the timing may be deliberate. If the department had leed off on the eating public a few weeks earlier, it probably would have been the target for the howls previously reserved for the purveyors of victuals.

To prove to us how wrong we've been, the D. of A. quotes some figures. It says the average family is paying only 21 per cent of its income for the same quantity of representative food that cost it 23 per cent before the war. That's fine. But when were those comparative figures taken, at the height of high prices or now, when most of us are complaining less? And wouldn't a median instead of an average figure have been better in this case?

A lot of people have seen their prewar income improved substantially in the last seven years. But a lot more haven't. This minus 2 per cent change in food prices isn't going to give much comfort to those with more-or-less fixed incomes, no matter what the department says.

The department says nothing about just what its "representative food" represents, nor does it say anything about quality. Many workers developed the insidious habit of buying more tasty and nutritious food with their wartime paychecks. When price controls went off and white market food took on black market prices, they may have found it hard to break that habit and go back to hog jowl and hominy.

The Agriculture Department concedes that there could be improvements in food processing and marketing, but it doesn't think that abusing the middleman or demanding smaller profits will help. Cutting profits won't result in lower food prices, it insists. Retailing costs are the big item, it says, representing about 25 cents of the average dollar spent for food.

That may be true, but it isn't a postwar phenomenon. New York City grocers used to say, before the war, that it cost more to transport food from trainside in New Jersey to their shelves than it did to ship the same food from California to the Hudson River wharves. So there must be other reasons why steak, butter, and other eatables went above the dollar mark in the not-so-distant past.

The D. of A. doesn't have any specific recommendations for bringing down the high prices which it says aren't high at all. Neither has any other department of government.

We'd guess that the first significant cause of price breaks, at least in some commodities, was consumer resistance. That was part of the public gripe against high prices.

And since you didn't even do anything that constructive, gentlemen of the Agriculture Department, kindly lay off the chiding. If we common folks want to scream like tattooed Indians when the butcher presents his bill, it's one of our democratic rights.

ADVENTURE—THAT'S SCOUTING

For the past 39 years, our country has been enriched by the existence of the Boy Scouts of America. This thriving movement has affected the lives of more than 15,500,000 boys and men who have, in turn, contributed to the general welfare of us all.

The theme of this year's Boy Scout Week, which currently is being observed, is "Adventure—That's Scouting"—but it's much more than that. Boy Scouts get the satisfaction of "learning by doing" exciting things, to "help other people at all times," and enjoying outdoor activities.

No yardstick can measure the harvest of advantage Boy Scouts bring to the nation and the community. But the Scouts depend

WHY PEACE?

Now that the air is somewhat cleared concerning Stalin's desire to see Truman again, certain questions arise which are more important than the incident.

1. What does Stalin have to say to Truman that can be different from what Molotov and Vishinsky have said at the various meetings at U.N. and the Council of Foreign Ministers? At U.N. and at the Council, the Russians fought the United States tooth and nail on every issue, but one. Out of that fight arose the cold war.

What can Stalin say to Truman about that? How can he undo the mischief that his representatives, undoubtedly by his orders, committed? How can he restore the loss of faith in millions of human beings who hoped that the end of Hitler would restore western civilization but who see all their beliefs and traditions crushed beneath the heel of Asiatic brutality and despotism?

2. There can be no peace in the heart of man as long as all of humanity lives in the shadow of the atomic bomb. This country made a fair and decent offer to every nation, including Soviet Russia, in the Baruch proposal. That offer Soviet Russia rejected in spite of its absolute renunciation of advantage on our part.

Instead, Soviet Russia has been in a race with us, the only end to which can be the use of the bomb by us against them and by them against us. In a word, their position forces upon us brutal but unending decisions.

Is Stalin anxious to see Truman to tell him that it was all a mistake, that Soviet Russia is prepared to accept the Baruch report or something of that nature—a universal renunciation of advantage? Surely, if that is the meaning of the desired meeting, it is not necessary for Truman to leave Washington or Stalin to leave the Crimea. A note would do the job.

3. Soviet Russia has violated practically every clause of the Potsdam Agreement. Some of these violations cannot be undone. But certainly Hungary, Czechoslovakia and China can still be freed from the bondage of foreign control. Is Soviet Russia ready to get out of those countries? Certainly, Truman would have to ask Stalin about that and Stalin can no longer lie about what Soviet Russia has been doing in them. Is Stalin ready to say that Soviet Russia has been wrong or will he follow the Communist line, which is that the workers and peasants of those countries love being enslaved to Soviet Russia?

4. Regarding Berlin, the problem is simple. Soviet Russia has failed to make Germany a Bolshevik state, but is she ready to acknowledge failure?

5. Now, as to Austria, that is very important because whoever dominates the Danube dominates the Balkans, imperils middle Europe and the Mediterranean and the peace of the world. Is Stalin prepared to tell Truman that he is willing to deal fairly and decently in the matter of Austria—a country which Soviet Russia is systematically despoiling?

6. As to the Marshall Plan, both the United States and Soviet Russia have made this a central issue of policy. The United States, the Marshall Plan represents the reconstruction and strengthening of western Europe, leading even to the prospect of a United States of Europe, a nation of 270,000,000 persons.

Soviet Russia has sought to lower the standards of life in western Europe with a view to the undermining of existing governments, so that all such countries will be ripe for the revolution and for ultimate union in the Federation of Socialist Soviet Republics.

What can Stalin possibly propose to Truman on this subject? How can those divergent policies be compromised? Or does Stalin believe that the United States will give up the Marshall Plan to appease Soviet Russia?

Stalin will try and try again. The Politburo does not lightly change its tactics. Stalin answers to the International-News Service questions could not have been the result of a spontaneous whim; they represent weeks of discussion and debate and possibly explain why Vishinsky cannot hate and possibly explain why Vishinsky cannot "concentrate" anymore and is in a sanitarium in Karlsbad.

Any rate, Harry Truman's reply, that if Stalin has anything to say, let him say it to the United Nations, is sound and dignified. (Copyright, 1949, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

That Body of Yours

TREATMENT OF ALCOHOLISM

Until recently, alcoholism was simply regarded as a bad or demoralizing habit which not only injured the alcoholic mentally and physically, but also was the cause of many broken homes. It was felt that if a man or woman really loved his or her parents or children, he or she could break the habit.

Today, the medical profession regards alcoholism as a disease which has its causes, symptoms and methods of treatment, as have other diseases. In "Industrial Medicine," Dr. R. V. Seliger states that alcoholism frequently is the result of poor and unsatisfactory emotional and other life habits. He stresses the fact that the symptoms of alcoholism are directly caused by emotional disturbances, and sometimes by actual changes in the structure of the brain (so-called "brain disease").

In order to treat the alcoholic patient, it is necessary to know about his personality make-up, the presence of any mild or severe mental illness, and his actual life setting and circumstances. The examiner must carefully examine and question the patient to learn just what type of alcoholism is present, how much damage has occurred to mind and body, how serious is the extent of the drinking, and what are the patient's motives for drinking. Then he must try to work out the best plan to cure him of alcoholism.

The most important point in bringing about a cure is that the patient must want to be cured. "Full cooperation of the family is essential."

Dr. Seliger suggests that just as heart, tuberculosis and arthritis clinics have been established, so also should there be psychiatric clinics where physicians could refer patients suffering with alcoholism for information and treatment. As an aid in the treatment of alcoholism, there should be farms where selected patients could receive psychiatric treatment and common sense re-education in life.

As the above treatment may not always be available, physicians are having considerable success with home treatment of alcoholism by a tablet of amphetamine sulfate (Benzedrine Sulfate) after breakfast and after lunch with a tablet of phenobarbital at bedtime. Both these drugs require a physician's prescription.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

Washington — Three distinguished statesmen were in hard to greet the French Gattitude Train when it arrived in Washington—Vice President Barkley and his former colleagues, Senators Connally of Texas, Democrat, and Vandenberg of Michigan, Republican.

These three have served in the Senate together for more than a quarter of a century. Sometimes they have been on opposite sides of bitter political battles, but they have never let party politics interfere with personal friendship. They know each other as well as the back of their hands, and they know the Senate—which is better than almost anyone else in Washington. How much Senator Vandenberg knows about the early boyhood of Senator Connally of Texas is his secret.

But at the very conclusion of the ceremonies welcoming the Gattitude Train, as the venerable Tom Connally took a bit of shears and snipped the red, white and blue ribbon sealing the District of Columbia boxcar, his old friend, the senator from Michigan, whispered to the vice president of the United States:

"I bet that's not the first time Tom has broken into a boxcar."

Acheson Wary of Bevin

It isn't being advertised outside the State Department, but British Foreign Minister Bevin didn't put his best foot forward with the new U. S. secretary of state just a few days after Dean Acheson took office.

Bevin sent what amounted to a frantic S.O.S. to Acheson for help to get him enough votes to squeak by an attempted censure of British foreign policy in the House of Commons. But after Acheson helped to get him the votes, Bevin, in effect, bit the hand that fed him.

Here is the inside story of what happened:

Just before the debate on Palestine, Bevin was worried sick that the Labor party might be defeated and have to resign. Part of the criticism was because "British policy in Palestine was upsetting American relations. Therefore, Bevin hit on the idea of telling Parliament that Britain and the United States had settled their differences and now agreed completely on Palestine."

Bevin actually wrote out his remarks in advance and cabled them to the State Department January 25 to make sure Secretary Acheson had no objection. Bevin also appealed to Acheson to issue an American statement backing up Bevin on Palestine. The State Department, however, found that the supporting Bevin. As a matter of fact, Acheson also considered protesting to Bevin about his American criticism, but finally decided to forget the whole thing. He decided, however, that he would think twice before helping Bevin out of a jam again.

Probe Dodgers' Airfield

It isn't often the Government gets mixed up in big-league baseball, but for some time the Civil Aeronautics Authority has been probing the Brooklyn Dodgers' spring training camp at Vero Beach, Florida.

Actually, the Dodgers are not involved. It's the city of Vero Beach which the Government is interested in, because of a complicated transaction by which Vero Beach is suspected of leasing a Government airfield to the Dodgers at a handsome profit. The airfield is being used by the Dodgers for their fair-weather training, for an official charge of $5 per year plus the proceeds from an exhibition game. The airfield is owned by the Government, and leased to the city of Vero Beach for nothing, with the stipulation that any income is to be used for the airfield's upkeep and improvement.

CAA officials now suspect that a lot more than $5 a year is being paid by the Dodgers for the airfield. What makes them suspicious is a statement by Mayor Merrill P. Barber that the city had "entered into a five-year renewable lease with the Brooklyn Baseball Club at an estimated income of $12,000 (annually)."

Later, city officials began to search for extra pillows upon which the Dodgers' heads were to rest at night. The Government supposedly was turning over a certain number of pillows with the airfield. And airport manager Bud

Holman, appealing for more pillows, complained: "This is really putting us in a bad position, as we have a 10-year contract which should bring us in from $20,000 a year upward."

"This," says the C.A.A., is a lot more than $5 a year. That's why the Government wants to find out what's happening to the extra money.

Reclamation Grudge Fight Renewed

One of the bitterest battles of the 80th Congress was over Director of Reclamation Mike Strauss and his California regional aide, Richard Boko. The battle finally ended by Congress taking the almost unprecedented action of barring them from the payroll.

Backstage, this battle is raging again inside the Rules Appropriations Committees of the 81st Congress, where a coalition of Southern Democrats and Republicans is gearing up to block Truman on reclamation. Real issue behind this battle is the 180-acre limitation on reclamation holdings in the Far West.

California's Senator Sheridan Downey, though a Democrat, led the grudge fight against Strauss and Boko. Bravely, he claimed they had administered the 180-acre limit too efficiently. Now he is pulling wires behind the scenes to block them from getting back their jobs, and to some extent, the fight has boiled down to one between Truman and Downey.

The other day, Truman sent a private memo to the House Appropriations Committee bluntly asserting that two reclamation officials were being "legislated out of office" by an arbitrary action diametrically opposed to the principles upon which this government was founded.

The President referred, of course, to the fact that the Executive Branch of the Government has the power of appointment. Truman's memo, however, was blocked by Appropriations Committee man John Taber of New York, a Republican, and Congressman Howard Smith of Virginia, a Democrat who operates inside the Rules Committee.

So far, Truman has lost the battle. The Feb. 1 deadline, at which time Strauss and Boko went off the payroll, has been reached and passed. The amendment Truman requested has been blocked. If a coalition of Democrats and Republicans can defeat him so easily on the question of reclamation, it will be interesting to see what happens regarding civil rights.

Landlords' Strike Is One of Big Problems Facing President, Whether State Socialism Is Dominant

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Feb. 10—A most significant trend in recent weeks has been the announcement of many landlords in several cities that they intend to engage in their lawful right to strike.

Henceforth it has been assumed that only workers have the right to strike. It has been contended that a worker could not be forced to labor against his will, as this would be "involuntary servitude." But when a group of landlords decide that they do not want to rent out any longer the houses they own and wish to close up shop and go out of the renting business, will the government step in and impose upon them an obligation to continue in business at a loss?

"This will be one of the most important tests of whether the Truman administration has embarked truly upon a course of state socialism. When the government stops in and, in effect, compels an owner of property to operate it at a loss, or permit an inadequate increase in rent to be fixed, it must find some means of reimbursing the owner, and that means a subsidy.

Up to now whenever the prices of farm products have dropped below a certain level, the government has stepped in with a subsidy. It has found that the owners of apartment houses, for instance, cannot function at present-day costs, someone will have to make up the difference. The government which gives subsidies to one group is obliged to furnish subsidies to all groups if the end result is in the public interest.

Obviously mass evictions of human beings from their homes cannot be tolerated. There are not many places to which such persons can go to live. Yet the same problem faces the country when a coal strike is called. The arbitrary right to close down the coal mines by ordering the miners to refuse to mine coal has been accepted as a lawful instrument to be used by citizens acting in concert.

The labor unions at present are fighting against any legislation which would give the government the right to enjoin concerted action by strikers. The administration says it doesn't need any law to enforce serious strikes.

The rent-control law provides that owners may take over their own property and evict tenants if it is intended by the owner "in good faith" to occupy his own property. This begs the real question. For if there is no constitutional right on the part of Congress to compel an owner to maintain a lease with a tenant when it is unprofitable for the owner to do so, it is not alleviated by the fact that the owner may wish to move into his own property. Either the owner has an absolute right over his own property or houses and dwellings generally have become "affected with a public interest" and are subject to some "inherent power" of the President to control. The use of the injunction process against landlords, while withdrawn from use against labor unions, will present quite a contradiction.

Rent legislation is one of the few controls left over from the war. It has been accepted as a humanitarian measure but, on the other hand, little attention has been paid to the economics of it. The proper remedy has been faced with increases in the price of fuel and in cost of maintenance. If rents are frozen at the same rates as existed in pre-war years, there are many property owners who cannot possibly make ends meet. When the government interferes with the law of supply and demand—as it does when there is a scarce commodity or a scarce service—some relief must be afforded to those who are the owners of the commodities or articles or facilities in question. Relief provisions in "hardship" cases are supposed to be applied under the rent-control law but this involves expense and red tape for the landlords. The smaller ones cannot afford it.

Encouragement of housing projects will, of course, ultimately relieve the scarcity. But in the meantime there is a concrete problem involving the right of property owners to engage in a lawful strike by concerted action.

If the government steps in and interferes with the right of property owners to strike, will not the same logic and perhaps the same constitutional principles be applied to prevent strikes in the future by workers when such strikes interfere with owners and safety? These are important questions which stem from the government's policy of freezing rents and endeavoring to control the price of rentals. Unless the federal government is willing to subsidize those property owners who are losing money, it would seem that the constitutional questions involved in rent control will furnish a real subject as to whether America is ready to embark on a course of state socialism such as has swept European countries, where housing, of course, is one of the government-controlled operations of a managed economy.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

On inauguration day, soon after President Truman had kissed the book and delivered his oration, I walked through the thin remaining wisps of the great crowd, back toward the congressional hotel behind the two house office buildings. I had been out on the plaza since nine, sitting on a pipe bench in the cold, peering out a running story with fingers so numb that they felt as though they had been needled with novocain. It was always my practice on the spot side to be there early for a heavyweight championship fight or Army-Navy or Army-Navy game, not only to foretell any mixup concerning seats in the press box or the wire, but for a temperamental reason. Watching the crowd come, sometimes picking up the names of some of the early people, and watching the photographers on their tower had up their look on ropes, like cliff-dwellers, is an interesting phase of the assignment. In the great aggregate people are the vast crowd or the gala turnout. But seen in the innocence apart as they grope their way in they are individuals, confused and anxious whether they will find their seats already taken or find themselves behind obstructions at the great moment. Not many in any crowd will be veterans of our inauguration shows. Most will be freshmen and of the veterans any who are biased will find heaven of hell an old story and a bore.

In the background of my thoughts a little reminder kept warning me now, that if it should happen, don't lose your head but sit tight and write it as you see it. A few words at a time. Fast. Never mind whether sentences ripple. Never mind pear-shaped figures of speech. Don't forget verbs. Never mind punctuation. Desk will do that.

As I was walking to the Congressional Hotel between the two house office buildings, I was walking past a typewriter box against my knees in the old days in sport. I found the West Pointers, the United States Corps of Cadets, waiting in the street and on down the slope, to march in the big parade. They were big fellows at the head end of the line. Great, handsome, perhaps a little overly pudgy fellows, jiggling in the cold, their caps on their heads, their shoes making a clatter like hoofs on the pavement. I passed on down their lines, looking into their faces. There would be a George Patton there, perhaps. An Eisenhower. A Spatz. A Terry. An Allen. An Omar Bradley. A Pershing. A plebe perhaps who would flunk out for not knowing what a cadillac was, and then would be called to get his commission the hard way, and become another Courtney Hodges. And there would be, of course, some cheap fellows who would conspire meanly to get rank and spurious honors and violate the code and dishonor themselves. It is true, unhappily, that there

So They Say... Questions-Answers

National health insurance would be the first step toward socialization of the entire United States economy if this country follows the downward path already followed by other countries.

—Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor, Journal of the American Medical Association.

National health insurance is no more socialistic than fire insurance. Opponents of practically all forward-looking legislation have attempted to stigmatize it as "socialistic."

—Oscar Ewing, federal security administrator.

Why don't we import bachelors from abroad? The foreign girls aided our man supply during the war, so I don't see why we shouldn't spirit some of them men away from them.

—Clara Lane, matrimonial service director, depicting U. S. mate shortage.

Anyone in public life, of course, must bear all sorts of criticism, just, unjust, perhaps outrageous. One thing which is irritating is to be charged with an attitude that is directly contrary to one's entire public life. The things I read about myself as an appeaser seem to me incredible that I cannot believe that even disinterested malice could think them up.

—Dean Acheson, newly-appointed secretary of state.

Q—Approximately, how many miles does a plane have to climb before it reaches the stratosphere?

A—About six miles, in the middle latitudes. The stratosphere is higher at the equator and lower at the poles.

Q—What is the special characteristic that determines a rodent?

A—A rodent is a growing mammal. Rabbits, beavers, squirrels, and porcupines, as well as mice and rats, are all rodents.

Q—In reference to the House of Representatives, what is a viva-voce vote?

A—It is a vote taken by roll call and answered orally by each member.

Q—How did cannon coal get its name?

A—Cannon coal contains much volatile matter and burns with a bright candle-like flame; and it is probable that the name is a corruption of candle-coal. Some scientists believe it is a product of an accumulation of animal as well as plant remains.

Q—Was Rutherford B. Hayes inaugurated on a Sunday?

A—March 4, 1877, fell on a Sunday, so Rutherford B. Hayes was sworn in secretly on March 3 and went through the usual ceremonies March 5. For one day the country had two presidents.

Dairymen Take Part in Talk on Grass as Silage

Local dairymen participating in a discussion on grass silage at New Paltz Wednesday afternoon emphasized the following points:

1. Good quality grass silage must be made from good quality hay and that late cut hay which makes poor quality feed also makes poor grass silage.

2. If a dairyman can make hay early in June there is no need for grass silage.

3. The most noticed advantage of grass silage is the large amount and good quality of aftermath which results when meadows are cut in early June.

The discussion was a part of the two-day dairy school conducted under the auspices of the Ulster County Farm Bureau at the Grange Hall in New Paltz. Clarence Padgham, assistant county agricultural agent, was moderator and participants in the discussion were Allison Terwilliger and Alfred Medell of Wallkill, Don Staley, Jr., of Lake Mohawk and Spencer Schoonmaker of Gardiner.

Smiley presented records kept on his farm which showed that where cows had been fed grass silage and hay in the previous year and fed all grass silage this past year, all produced more milk on the grass silage alone, the percentage of increase for individual cows ranging from 22 to 60 per cent.

There was a divided opinion on the use of molasses as a preservative, but it was generally agreed that if the price of molasses becomes more reasonable the use of it in the earliest part of the season is perhaps good insurance. This is due to the fact that the sugars in molasses may be used if necessary, but if it is not necessary the feeding value of the sugars is still in the molasses, it was pointed out.

During the morning session, Professor L. Slaton, Cornell agronomist, said that when properly used 2, 4-D gives excellent control of weeds in corn and wheat. He stressed caution, however, and gave specific recommendations for safe application. He warned against using the material at all on plantings including legume seed.

Professor James Burke, Cornell animal husbandman, told the group that it is important to grow heifers to maximum size so that they will have high capacity to produce. "Big cows can produce more milk than small ones because they can eat more feed to make into milk," he said.

About 60 dairymen from this area attended the school, which closed Wednesday.

Dewey Goes to Albany

New York, Feb. 10 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey returns to Albany today—and he says that for the moment he's got no more to say about Republican party politics. "Everything I had on my chest was said last night," he said on his arrival here yesterday from Washington, where he delivered a Lincoln Day address Tuesday night. Dewey said he was "well pleased" with reaction to his address, but that "time alone will tell" whether the Republican party will adopt the ideas he proposed. His address, in which he called for more liberal Republican policies, was his first major political talk since his defeat by President Truman in the November 2 election.

Police Uncover Kid Death Game

Cleveland, Feb. 10 (AP)—Members of the police department's Accident Prevention Bureau said today they had uncovered a "sudden death" game among juveniles playing in traffic.

Patrolmen Neal O'Donnell and Bernard J. Prinz gave it the name "sudden death" but said children called it "yellow tang" and other names.

The players line up along a curb. When the leader shouts a number or a name borrowed from a comic book, the player who has been given that number or name must dash across the street in front of approaching traffic.

The game came to light in the investigation of a traffic accident in which a six-year-old girl was injured. The girl denied she had been playing the game. The patrolmen said a companion first admitted, then denied, that such a game was in progress when the accident happened.

Modena House Destroyed by Fire

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the farmhouse of Frank Schillace near Modena early this morning.

The house, an 11-room frame dwelling with asbestos shingle covering, is located about one and one-half miles southeast of Modena on the road to Silva.

The Modena Fire Department responded to an alarm about 2:30 a. m. today, but was unable to save the interior of the building from destruction because the flames had gained considerable headway. The fire was kept from spreading to the barn and other outbuildings by the efforts of the firemen.

No one was at home when the fire broke out, and no estimate of damage could be made this morning.

Senator Charges N.L.R.B. Counsel Biased on Unions

Washington, Feb. 10 (AP)—The Senate's labor bill hearings were thrown into an uproar today by a demand from Senator Neely (D-W. Va.) that Robert N. Denham be freed as general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board.

Neely called Denham "biased and prejudiced." His accusation came after Woodruff Randolph, president of the International Typographical Union (A.F.L.), told the committee that Denham made statements in 1947 which "indicated to me that government agencies were hostile to us."

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) protested Neely's statement and demanded that the West Virginian withdraw it.

Neely refused.

"I reiterate it," he shouted. "I think he (Denham) is the most biased and prejudiced man I have ever heard testify."

"His conduct here as a witness was such as to impel every labor union in the United States to call for his removal."

Truman Clings To Program for Taxes and Control

Washington, Feb. 10 (AP)—President Truman said today he is still as strong as ever for a $4,000,000,000 tax increase and for stand-by wage and price controls.

The President's call for more money was made at his news conference just after Secretary of the Treasury Snyder had told Congress it is "essential" that the increase be granted "as soon as possible."

At the White House, the questioning on taxes revolved around a reporter's query whether the President is hopeful of getting the tax increase in view of recent developments in the commodity markets and on Capitol Hill.

The President said yes, he is. Then he added he is just as strong for the tax increase now as when he first called for it.

Then, asked whether a further downward trend in the market might lead him to alter his opinion, he said it would not.

It would be just as advisable to raise taxes in that case, he said, because further economic development would not offset the expenses of the government and he is trying to avoid a deficit.

Snyder's plea was made before the Senate Finance Committee on the Economic Report.

Democratic congressional leaders had indicated a wish to put off action on taxes for at least several months.

Saville Declares Warning System Extremely Poor

Washington, Feb. 10 (AP)—An air force general told Congress today the nation's air warning defense system is so inadequate that "words would be impossible to describe how poor it is."

Maj. Gen. Gordon P. Saville, head of the Air Defense Command, urged swift approval of a $161,000,000 plan to throw an effective radar screen around the United States, with outposts at sea and around the world, under the air force.

He testified before the House Armed Services Committee in support of a bill by Rep. Durham (D.-N.C.) to authorize the program. Chairman Vinson (D.-Ga.) of the Armed Services Committee is a co-sponsor of the plan.

Durham asked General Saville whether he considers the present radar warning system "dangerously inadequate." The general replied:

"Yes, sir. Words would be impossible to describe how poor it is. It is almost a blank."

All the defendants except Shanker and Lal were members of the militant Hindu Mahasabha Party and of the martial Mahatma race which has been a traditional foe of Muslims for the last 400 years.

Savarkar, 63-year-old poet, dramatist, historian and revolutionary, is a former president of Mahasabha. The case against him was largely built on the circumstantial evidence of frequent visits of the plotters to his house. A lean old man with wire-rimmed spectacles, he sat tapping his teeth with a pencil during the proceedings and took his acquittal without visible emotion.

During his trial Godse confessed he killed Gandhi "purely for the benefit of humanity" and asked for death.

"I do not desire any mercy be shown me," he said in a long statement.

He said he "respected Gandhi's saintliness" but disagreed with his policies of love and tolerance for Muslims.

Truman Asks Price

ury Snyder told the Senate House Economic Committee today "there is no evidence of more than normal speculative holdings of commodities." Snyder added in a statement: "In fact, speculation recently, both in commodities and in the stock market, has not been cause for concern."

Truman gave his opinion about "speculative influences" in the commodity markets during testimony before the Senate Agriculture Committee.

He coupled this with a statement that "the outlook for farmers in 1949 is good." Republican Senators Phyllis of Minnesota and Young of North Dakota said they found little reassurance in Truman's optimism, however.

Plane Wreckage Found
Washington, Feb. 10 (AP)—The State Department announced today that the wreckage of an American diplomatic plane, missing since Sunday with five army airmen, had been found in a mountainous area of Iran. A report from the American embassy at Tehran said there was "no sign of life." An air search continued but it may be several days before ground parties could reach the scene, the report said.

I'm Mrs. Thrifty Housewife..

Like my neighbor, Mrs. Particular Housewife, I expect many things from a food store! Because I have a limited budget, I want most to buy my family's food at the lowest possible prices. I know that one brand of peas or beans is just as good for my purpose as higher priced brands. I know that the cheaper cuts of meat are just as nutritious as the more costly ones. With planning and careful buying, I can get just as much GOOD food as someone with more money than I. Therefore, I INSIST on a wide choice of brands and varieties while being able to trust completely their freshness and nutritive value.

That's Why I've Traded at The Bull Market All These Years !!!

his home and immediately notified Montecena DeWitt of Zena, light and maintenance superintendent of state roads.

Representatives of the Kingston Water Department, New York Telephone Company and the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company were called and rushed to the scene. A few telephones in the district were out of order but the light lines were all intact.

Although the Lindin house is situated atop the small cliff about 40 feet from where the landslide took place, neither Mrs. Lindin nor her housekeeper, Mrs. Anna Gander, were aware of what was taking place until later when notified by friends. Mrs. Lindin was using the telephone at the time and the line suddenly went dead. Crews from the New York Telephone and Central Hudson supervised by Mervin Doremus and Charles Kling were called out and worked most of the night. The State Highway Department had a compressor on the scene this morning to break up the rock and remove it from the highway. In the meantime, one lane on State Route 212 at that point is open.

Town Supervisor Kenneth L. Wilson and State Trooper Ray Dunn were standing by throughout the night to handle any emergency that might arise as a result of the landslide.

Mrs. Lindin today praised the efforts and courtesy of the utility companies' crews. Every consideration was given, Mrs. Lindin said, particularly during the night hours when there was a total absence of unnecessary noises.

The funeral of Christopher G. Tierney, captain of the Kingston-Rhinoclast Ferry, was held from his late residence, 87 Spring street, Wednesday at 9:30 a. m. and at 10 a. m. at St. Mary's Church where a solemn high Mass of requiem was offered for the repose of his soul. The Rev. Martin J. Drury, P.R.V.F., was the celebrant with the Rev. John Flaherty as deacon and the Rev. Edward J. Farrelly as subdeacon. Father Adam Otterwein, C.S.R., was seated within the chancel. Responses to the Mass were sung by the children's choir under the direction of Theodore Riccoboni, organist. At the offertory Martin Kelly sang Ave Verum and at the conclusion Ave Maria. Assisting at the Mass were Sisters of St. Ursula of the Blessed Virgin, St. Mary's Rosary Society, the Mothers' Association and seniors and eighth grade pupils of the Academy of St. Ursula and members of St. Mary's Holy Name Society. While the body reposed at the home a great number of friends called to pay their respects and to offer condolences to the bereaved family. Monday evening members of St. Mary's Rosary Society, of which Mrs. Tierney is president, called and assisted Msgr. Drury in the celebration of the rosary. Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. members of Rapid Hose Co., No. 1, led by their chaplain, the Rev. Frank L. Golnick, held services. At 8 p. m. the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's Church assisted Father Edward J. Farrelly in the recitation of the rosary. The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Stephen P. Connelly, Father John A. Flaherty and Sisters of St. Ursula of the Blessed Virgin also called. The many Mass cards and flowers which were placed in the casket were silent expressions of esteem in which Mr. Tierney was held by all who knew him. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery where a Mass of requiem was celebrated by Msgr. Drury and Father Flaherty. The honorary bearers were Hubert Cosgrove, John J. Malone, Nelson Sieght, John Miller, Howard Hounbeck and Thomas Edward members of the crew of the ferry of which Mr. Tierney was captain. Several members of the New York State Bridge Authority also acted as honorary bearers. Active bearers were Captain Michael McCullough, Captain Fred Parlow, Captain Joseph Elgo, Chief Engineer William McGowan and two members of the Rapid Hose company, Walter Albright and George Fardee.

Refugee Problems Are Described to Local Rotarians

George Goodfellow, director of the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund, who for the past six years has supervised the work of that fund and other relief organizations in Greece, Poland and the Middle East, gave a graphic description of the deprivation and an explanation of operations in getting aid to children and nursing mothers in those many lands, before the Kingston Rotary Club at its luncheon meeting on Wednesday. Goodfellow, who is on leave, was general secretary of the Kingston Y.M.C.A. before entering the armed forces.

In spite of almost insuperable transportation and distribution difficulties in refugee areas, his organization brought aid to the refugees, who were packed in makeshift quarters, he reported. As an example of the overcrowding, the speaker cited that City of Yannina in Greece. The normal population of 24,000 was swelled by the arrival of some 15,000 refugees. This taxed the water supply and other ordinary conveniences for sanitary and hygienic purposes together with a tremendous housing problem. Wooden shanties were hastily erected and the refugees moved in using the bare floors as sleeping quarters. In one compound there was but a single cold water faucet to supply the water needs of some 200 people. Disease was commonplace due to the lack of adequate sanitation facilities. Children not fortunate enough to crowd into the compound were living in the fields.

As an illustration of the hardships and deprivation there as a result of the sudden influx, Goodfellow asked the Rotarians to picture in their minds' eyes what would happen in Kingston if there was a sudden surge of thousands of people here from New York city forced to come here by some emergency such as an attack by atomic bombs.

The suddenness in which these people lost their homes and their belongings was terrifying, he said. He exhorted his auditors to see that it doesn't happen in this country. One of the best ways to head off any such danger, he explained, was to have a more active interest in government and civic affairs. Be sure that the right people are going to represent you in these all important matters, he asserted.

In the question period which followed his enlightening and illuminating talk, he observed that the United States should send leadership along with its money to overseas countries. It is this done here, we are quick to move last results and it will be less expensive to the taxpayers.

While today's hand may seem pretty simple to the expert, many good players would go after the wrong suit.

When West opens the queen of spades, you know that you have two spade tricks and three heart tricks. You cannot hope for a fourth heart trick because the opponents' hearts will be divided at least 4-3.

The diamond suit is the solid suit. You have only one positive loser in diamonds. You are bound to make three diamond tricks as soon as you knock out the ace. But add them to the five tricks in spades and hearts, and you have only eight tricks. Your contract is for nine.

If you knock out the diamond ace first, West will win and come back with another spade. Now when you go to establish the club trick, West will win with the ace of clubs and run off the balance of his spades.

You should first win the opening spade lead. You can win it in either hand, but it may be better to win it in the closed hand with the ace, then lead a small club toward dummy's king. If West refuses to win, take the trick in dummy with the king and come back with a small club to your own hand. West has to win this trick, and you are assured of four club tricks, three hearts and two spades, the nine tricks needed for your contract.

Mignon Brothers At The Broadway

Martel and the Mignon Brothers, adagio dancing stars of last week's Milton Berle television show, and Johnny Burke, the "forgotten soldier of World War I" will share top billing on the five-act professional vaudeville show at the Broadway Theatre on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 11 and 12.

The Mignon Brothers—three men—and Martel made their video debut on the Berle show after a long series of engagements in top supper clubs and leading theatres throughout the country. Theirs is a violent adagio routine, climaxed by two of the brothers throwing Martel across the entire length of the stage to be caught by the third brother.

One matinee and two evening performances will be presented, in addition to the screen feature "Bungalow 13" with Tom Conway and Margaret Hamilton.

For Johnny Burke this will be a return engagement to the Wilbur Reade circuit. He appeared last year at the Broadway Theatre in Kingston, and his comic routine of the woe that befell him while he was a doughboy in 1917, won such enthusiastic audience applause that he is being brought back to play the entire vaudeville circuit.

Also on the bill will be Bobby Robbins, young comedian billed as "America's Newest Style Hamlet."

Aerobatics will be supplied by McFarland and Brown, a young man and wife combination who have just returned from a tour of Japan entertaining American occupation troops.

GARDINER

Gardiner, Feb. 9.—Mr. and Mrs. John Branche of Albany and Mr. and Mrs. Egbert Rhinehart of Kingston were week-end guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rhinehart.

Mrs. Dawson Upright and daughter, Donna, were in Poughkeepsie Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hans Andersen have returned home after spending the past 10 days at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Coons. Mr. and Mrs. Coons recently returned from a trip to the south.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Reformed Church met at the hall last Wednesday for an all-day meeting. Rags were given to the women who will weave them into rugs for the annual fair. A covered dish luncheon was served with Mr. Van Strien as a guest. The business session was held in the afternoon with Mrs. Ivan Ostrander, vice-president, presiding. At the conclusion of the business period, Mrs. Van Strien presented an interesting talk on the missionary work in Africa. Many useful articles made by the women were brought to the meeting. These items will be sent to Europe.

The Dutch Circle will meet at the parsonage next Monday night. The Forest Glen Home Bureau will meet at the home of Mrs. James George Thursday, Feb. 17. The meeting will start at 10 a. m. on the subject "Yeast, Breads and Rolls." Mrs. George will be the leader.

she is only interested in materials and designs of the local region in order to have the Senate House restoration work completely in keeping with the type of furnishings peculiar to this part of the country.

A few bits of textiles which she has discovered are originals and never have been reported from any other part of the United States.

A piece of camelot or moreen was found during a recent complete inventory of the Senate House along with the unusual printed cotton drapery which is pictured. The camelot cloth is a beautiful scarlet and Miss Holahan plans to have reproductions of it made for hangings in the Senate Room.

However, neither the fragment found at the house nor the other piece loaned by Mrs. William A. Warren of Hurley, supply enough of the design to make a repeat of the print. Perhaps some other person has some of this material that would supply the missing pattern.

Also from Mrs. Warren's treasures has been loaned a red white printed material, a combination of cotton and linen dating about 1760. The type of material was made in England and Ireland with the manufacturers using a copper plate engraving for the design.

Anyone who believes he has a piece of material that might help in the restoration work is asked by Miss Holahan to bring it to the Senate House.

Original Paint Uncovered

During the past year Miss Holahan has worked in providing the correct color schemes for the downstairs rooms. In each room, she carefully scraped away the paint, layer by layer, until she discovered the original paint on the woodwork. This color has been duplicated in the new paint.

In order to make accurate reproductions, Miss Holahan studied old records and account books from the original families of Kingston, to discover the pigments used in painting jobs at that time. She then obtained the same type of pigments and mixed the colors to match the originals. In each room, a tiny spot has been left to show the original paint.

'Mop Boards' Are Black

As was customary all baseboards throughout the house are black. In colonial days they were called "mop boards." All of the walls are white, for in the 1771 period whitewash was used for walls in this region.

The woodwork in the rooms adds the bit of color. The entrance hall woodwork is ochre yellow; kitchen, mahogany color; north end bed room, Prussian blue; dining room, deep yellow green; Senate room, olive green; Forsyth room, peacock blue. Some of the original tiles are intact in the fireplace while in the dining room fireplace are set new tiles in exact reproduction of the old ones. The original beams are among the interesting bits of interior architecture in the kitchen.

The tiles were reproduced by Louise Brook (Mrs. Frank Brook) of Shady.

Furnishings of 1771

Furnishings are being placed according to the 1771 period. The rooms will be arranged as they might have appeared when the first Senate met that year.

Miss Holahan came to the Senate House following her success in restoring the Schuyler mansion in Albany. She specializes in restorations and owns the oldest house in Rochester, the Oliver Culver House, which she has restored. It is described as the most beautiful example of the post colonial architecture in western New York.

She was invited to participate in the restoration of Schuyler Mansion at the suggestion of the Society for the Preservation of Landmarks in western New York. So successful were her suggestions that the mansion board of trustees appointed her executive consultant.

Her work in Kingston is completely voluntary.

classification even though there is a moratorium on inductions. This also is true with registrants who reach their 26th birthday. Unless a person attained his 26th anniversary by August 30, 1948, he must be registered with Selective Service and he must continue to inform his local board of a change of address or status after he reaches 26.

The state director also pointed out that employers should continue to request the occupational deferment of registrants who are necessary employees and whom the employer believes cannot be replaced. Employers should also continue to notify local boards of a change of status of employees for whom an application for occupational deferment has been made.

"A continuance of relations between registrants and employers with Selective Service, as prescribed by law," General Brown emphasized, "is of considerable advantage to both registrants and employers, regardless of the moratorium on inductions. Above all, the registrant will not become a delinquent if he obeys the law."

night's meeting were Sam Bernstein, vice-chairman; Mrs. Herbert L. Shultz, secretary, and William Darling, treasurer.

The meeting was addressed by Thomas J. Craighead, of New York, regional director of the Boys' Clubs of America, who told of the work being done by Boys' Clubs in other cities of the Hudson Valley and outlined minimum standards for clubs which apply for membership in the national organization. He spoke highly of the "esprit de corps" of the Kingston Club under Fuhrman's direction.

Plans were made to incorporate the club in the near future. It was decided that the next meeting will be held at the Boys' Club building, Wednesday, February 23, at 8 p. m.

Trains Still Roll

New York, Feb. 10 (AP)—Trains were still rolling on the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad early today, despite a strike by station agent and maintenance men. Commuters, however, had some trouble obtaining small change for turnstile coin slots after charge booths were left unmanned. The stoppage was called for 11 p. m.

Recovery in Italy

Rome, Feb. 10 (AP)—Diktator Benito Mussolini set out to make Italy self-sufficient. America's European recovery program aims at making it self-supporting.

Vainly, however, Fascism wanted an Italy that could tell the world to go hang. E.R.P. wants to make Italy a healthy part of world trade.

Italy's basic troubles are: Too many people; excessive cost of production; loss of foreign markets; taxation that hampers production and penalizes the poor; excessive bureaucracy; lack of investment capital and high interest rates; out-moded industrial plant and agricultural methods; and, very important, a prevailing sense of political and business insecurity.

This is how E.C.A., guided by California businessman James D. Zellerbach, is tackling these problems.

One of E.C.A.'s first reports was to create an aura of confidence in the future. An element of high Italian prices is big, quick profits. E.C.A. wants to make Italian industry feel confident enough to invest for small, steady mass-production profits.

Confidence and production are needed to stabilize the lira. E.C.A. wants the Italian government to feel enough confidence to halt its political and economic fire fighting in favor of long term planning and an overall approach.

"Unless we can solve the problems raised by Italy's overpopulation," said Zellerbach, in an interview, "we will not be far ahead of where we were, no matter what else we do."

The first test E.C.A. applies to a proposed project is, "how many people it will employ?"

If nothing were done to employ or send them abroad, Italy's unemployed would amount to 3,000,000 by 1952. E.C.A. estimates, E.C.A. hopes — optimistically — to bring this down to 450,000.

E.C.A. has approved in principle spending 15,000,000,000 lire ($26,000,000) to construct ships in Italy (itself a work-absorbing project), and so break the shipping bottleneck clogging Italian emigration.

E.C.A. also will finance vocational training for ill workers to the needs of receiving countries. Altogether, in the four years of E.R.P., E.C.A. hopes to help ease 1,400,000 Italian overseas and in Europe.

E.C.A. has a fund for sending Italian government administrators to study United States tax structure, and collection methods. Bureaucracy is such in Italy that the cost of government is a serious drain on investment capital.

Italy took $87,000,000 of its first year $610,000,000 of E.R.P. money in loans. These will be used mainly for industrial modernization. Roberto Tremelloni, Socialist vice premier and the government's E.R.P. man, said his office has calls for private industrial loans amounting to $250,000,000. Italy has asked the International Bank for reconstruction and development for loans of $90,000,000.

To strike a double edged blow at the twin evils of lack of investment capital and high interest rates, E.C.A. plans to lend 26,000,000 lire ($45,200,000) to small and medium Italian businesses. In agriculture E.C.A. is concentrating on farmer education, more intensive farming, land reclamation and irrigation. To increase foreign trade E.C.A. puts its weight behind projects like the tentative Franco-Italian Customs Accord signed last March. E.C.A. encourages commercial agreements. All of these things working together, E.C.A. hopes and expects, will provide Italy new industrial, commercial and agricultural capacity and put that capacity to full work at the lowest possible production cost.

JITTERY CORN TRADING ON GRAIN MARKET

About as confused as this picture was the trading on the floor of the Chicago corn pit, where the camera recorded traders in the midst of their hand-signals during a widely fluctuating session. Jitters were soothed somewhat after the government moved in on the grain market to fill foreign commitments. (NBA Telephoto)

Baffled Farmer Asks Protection From 5,000 Ducks

Washington, Feb. 10 (AP)—A baffled Montana farmer lifted a desperate cry today for the government to save him from the ducks.

Nearly beaten in the game of matching his wits against the appetites of 5,000 wildfowl, Ervin Weinheimer of Leaviston wrote Senator Ecton (R-Mont.) asking for a "fair chance and an equal opportunity for the farmer."

"It just doesn't seem to me that it is the 'American way' for the government to protect the ducks and in turn not to protect the farmer from them," he said. Maybe the government should feed the ducks, he suggested.

Here is a nibble-able account of the happenings around the Warm Springs Creek, Mont., countryside, as told by Weinheimer:

"To begin with, he was haled out last summer. But having 50 head of cows to feed through the winter, he cut 35 acres of half-damaged barley and some wheat and stacked it for use as hay.

All winter there were 500 ducks around Weinheimer's place. That is, until two weeks ago. Then, about 5,000 of their hungry relatives moved in and cast their eyes on Weinheimer's haystacks.

"So they started tearing into the stacks," the farmer explained briefly and bitterly.

"You would think that ducks couldn't hurt a stack very much," he wrote Ecton, "I didn't either—but after the first day they had dug into the stacks about three or four feet at the base."

Scare them away? They wouldn't scare.

Whatever Weinheimer tried—and he tried about everything—was a disappointment, and the ducks went right on feeding on his haystacks.

He said the federal game agent advised him that he could try scaring the ducks with blank shotgun shells, but warned him not to kill any, or he might be haled into court.

The ducks didn't budge when the blanks went off.

Finally Weinheimer bought some netting and put it around the base of his stacks.

"Then the ducks started going on top of the stacks."

Weinheimer went out and bought more netting and put it on top of his haystacks. But he couldn't win.

He couldn't get to the hay to feed his cows.

All he asks, Weinheimer said, is legislation "to give fair treatment to both the farmer and the ducks."

Committee Is Named

New York, Feb. 10 (AP)—A city-wide committee of Republicans has been appointed in this mayoralty year "to act as a liaison group with other movements and organizations interested in good government." The committee was announced last night by Secretary of State Thomas J. Curran, chairman of the New York County G.O.P. Committee, in conjunction with party leaders of Kings, Queens, the Bronx and Richmond.

Fare Increased Asked

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 10 (AP)—A two-cent fare increase has been approved by the Public Service Commission for two street railway lines operating from Yonkers to Mt. Vernon and New York city. The increase, from five to seven cents, was granted to the Yonkers Railroad Co. of Yonkers and the Third Avenue Transit Corp. of New York city. They were granted an interim basis until December 31 of this year.

Sees Taxes Harmful

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 10 (AP)—Increased state taxes on pari-mutuel betting at upstate tracks would be "detrimental to the best interest of breeding and racing of harness horses," harness horsemen and track representatives contend. District 9, United States Trotting Association, which claims 1,100 members, adopted a resolution at its annual meeting yesterday opposing the proposed tax increases.

HEART CAKE HONORS ST. VALENTINE

Cranberry heart cake festooned with whipped cream ribbons.

By GAYNOR MADDOX

NEA Staff Writer

Here is a cake that looks like a bright red valentine. It is all ribboned and bowed with bands of fluffy whipped cream:

Cranberry Heart Cake

One and one-third cups sifted cake flour, 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 3 eggs, separated, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1/3 cup water, 1 package strawberry gelatin, 1 can whole cranberry sauce.

Combine baking powder, salt and sifted flour and sift twice again. Beat egg whites until stiff. Gradually beat in half the sugar (about 2 tablespoons at a time). Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Add remaining sugar and vanilla. Continue beating until very thick. Slowly add water, stirring constantly. Fold in beaten egg whites. Sift about 1/4 cup dry ingredients at one time over surface, then fold into egg mixture. Turn into heart-shaped pan or square-cake pan (8x8x2 inches) that has been greased on the bottom and lined with waxed paper. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 40 to 45 minutes. Invert on cake rack until cake is cool. Remove from pan. Peel off paper from bottom of cake. Use pan to mold cranberry topping.

Topping: Dissolve gelatin according to directions on package, reducing water by 1/2 cup. When gelatin begins to gel, stir in cranberry sauce. Pour into pan in which cake was baked. Chill in refrigerator until firm. Unmold on top of cake. Pipe with sweetened whipped cream.

Tuna Delicieux (Serves 6)

Two cans tuna, 1 cup cream sauce, 2 (8-ounce) cans tomato sauce, 1 small green pepper, chopped, 1/4 pound cheddar cheese, grated, 1 can sliced mushrooms, 1 package frozen asparagus tips, 1 package noodles, cooked.

Combine cream sauce, canned tomato sauce, mushrooms and tuna. Arrange cooked noodles in bottom of greased baking dish. Pour on tuna mixture. Arrange thawed asparagus tips on top. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 40 minutes.

Valentine Cocktail: Chilled pineapple and maraschino juice, garnish with wedge of pineapple and cherry on toothpick.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Grapefruit, cooked whole wheat cereal, enriched toast, butter or fortified margarine, jelly, coffee, milk.

VALENTINE LUNCHEON PARTY: Valentine cocktail, tuna delicieux, pascal celery and ripe olives, tiny hot biscuits or rolls, butter or fortified margarine, cranberry heart cake, tea, milk.

DINNER: Boiled tongue, horseradish sauce, parsley boiled potatoes, creamed buttered broccoli, pickled beet and lettuce salad, rye bread, butter or fortified margarine, sliced oranges and bananas, sponge cake, coffee, milk.

Irish Voters Decide Status, Crown Allegiance or Republic

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Feb. 10 (AP)—Voters of Ulster swarmed out today to decide a bitterly fought general election. The issue was to stay under the British crown or join Southern Ireland in a republic.

Both sides contended in advance that backers of continued union with Britain would capture a majority of the 52-member Northern Ireland Parliament.

The opposition, however, which favors merging with Eire in a new "Republic of Ireland" hoped, to roll up an impressive vote for its cause.

Today's voting was on seats from 28 contested districts. Four other contested seats are held by Queens University in Belfast. But the voting there is by mail and results will not be known for several weeks.

Peace At Last From PERSISTENT ITCH!

No wonder thousands tossed for itchy torment. When the day first dawned to them, there a quick action from first moment—a blinding sense of relief that lasts and lasts, thanks to active soothing action in a minute. It's the only relief that's so effective.

of trouble. Flamboyant parades last night ended a slum-bung campaign in which stones and bottles were thrown at political rallies and store windows were smashed.

"Twenty-eight years ago the six counties of Northern Ireland (Ulster), mainly Protestant, refused to join the 26 predominantly Catholic counties of Eire, or Southern Ireland and stayed with Britain. There have been two Irelands since."

The issues of race and religion cropped up in the campaign just ended. Many in Northern Ireland are descendants of Scots and Britons who came here 300 years ago.

Sir Basil Brooke, prime minister of Northern Ireland, whose Unionist Party wants to stay along with Britain, charged Eire political leaders with "unjustifiable interference" in the Ulster campaign.

He said in a pre-election statement there was a possibility the now outlawed Irish Republican army might renew old-time "murder, arson and kidnapping in an election day 'invasion'."

Sir Basil's party held a better than two-thirds majority in the old House of Commons. Sir Basil dissolved Parliament last month to prepare for a show of public feeling on the question. The prime minister predicted the election would increase the Unionist margin.

The Unionists had 35 seats and their independent supporters, three in the old Parliament. Anti-Partitionists had 14—divided eight Nationalists, four Laborites, an Independent and a Socialist Republican.

The "King of Republic" issue was intensified by Eire's "Republic of Ireland" bill cutting southern Ireland's last thin ties with the British Crown. The measure, passed by the Eire Parliament, will not go into effect until Eire and Britain have ironed out dual citizenship and tariff problems.

Northern Ireland, although it has had its own Parliament, has been politically a part of the United Kingdom. The Parliament has power to legislate on local matters, but not on matters of imperial concern or those reserved specifically to the Imperial Parliament. Northern Ireland sends 13 members to the British House of Commons. Most taxes are imposed and collected by United Kingdom authorities.

The leader of the Nationalist Anti-Partition group is James McSparan, a leading attorney and a Catholic.

Lutheran Asks Who Will Be Next; Cardinal Second

Recalling that the trial of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty is the second such anti-Christian persecution in Hungary, the Rev. Paul C. Empe, D.D., a leading member of the Lutheran Church in America, has questioned the world as to the third and possibly other victims of police states.

Dr. Empe, who has appeared in Kingston, brought to light the incident surrounding the first trial in a special news article for the New York Journal American.

Writing in The Journal American, Dr. Empe wrote, "the trial of Cardinal Mindszenty recalls to the mind of religious observers the experience of Bishop Lajos Ordass, Bishop of the Lutheran Church of Hungary, whose arrest and imprisonment preceded that of the Roman Catholic cardinal by only a few months."

Bishop Ordass, the story continued, was arrested on September 10, 1948, on charges that he had not reported to the government the receipt of funds for church rehabilitation from Lutherans in America.

Although the prosecutor at the trial admitted that the transaction of such affairs was not the bishop's responsibility but that of other church officials, Bishop Ordass was declared guilty and sentenced to two years in prison.

Proceedings Similar Dr. Empe continued in his story by saying that although charges brought against Bishop Ordass were not precisely parallel to those on the alleged basis of which Cardinal Mindszenty was arraigned, they were rather technical with a similarity in the whole proceeding which brings to light very striking implications.

The Journal American story added "Bishop Ordass, one of the first of the younger church leaders to be elevated to the office of bishop at the war's end, was acclaimed as a great churchman and patriotic public leader."

Dr. Empe, with a challenge to the Christian world, summed up his article by writing the following:

"Bishop Ordass was the first victim of this anti-Christian persecution. Cardinal Mindszenty is the second."

Who shall be the third, or the fourth, or the fifth—unless world public opinion shall swell in tremendous volume so as to cause even leaders of police states to recognize that there are principles of justice which they cannot ignore."

May Foot-Print Babes

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 10 (AP)—The foot-printing of a newborn child and fingerprinting of the mother would be required soon after birth under bills introduced in the Legislature. The measure, sponsored by Senator Harold I. Panken and Assemblyman Harold A. Stevens, Manhattan Democrats, are aimed at eliminating possible confusion over the maternity of a child born at a hospital.

Local Musicians' Union to Teach Children

Project Will Start
Next Wednesday
With 1st Rehearsal

An educational program to develop musical talent among youngsters of Kingston and surrounding area has been planned by Local 215, American Federation of Musicians, with the hope of having an orchestra and band ready for concerts in the city parks next summer.

Announcement to this effect was made at a committee meeting Wednesday evening in the home of Mrs. Clementine Nessel, 108 West O'Reilly street, where enthusiasm ran high among the musicians concerning the project to help children interested in a musical education.

Although he was not present, John M. Cole, president of Local 215, sent a message of encouragement to the committee, who, he feels will receive civic cooperation in carrying out its plans.

Endorse Program
Marlin Morvette, band director of Kingston High School, was a guest at the meeting and endorsed the project as one that should be very beneficial to the growing generation of musicians. Alexander "Pop" Fuhrman, director of the Kingston Boys Club, informed the committee that they could count on his cooperation, and complimented them for encouraging the youth of this area. "It is indeed a worthy undertaking that deserves the backing all interested in helping young Americans to become better citizens," said Fuhrman. "I'm behind any movement to give the youngsters a chance," he added.

Mrs. Nessel, who presided as chairman, proposed that an immediate start be made on the plan and scheduled the first rehearsal for Wednesday, Feb. 16, at 7:15 p. m. in the union's hall on the third floor of the Leventhal building, 288 Wall street.

All Children Invited
"We are looking for a large attendance of children," she said. "There's no age limit, every youngster will be welcome. And, it makes no difference what instrument he wants to play." Those who have instruments are asked to bring them, also music stands if they have them.

Johnny Valentine, local pianist, and William Steuding, trombonist, serving on the committee, stressed that children and parents consider that there is no charge attached to the lessons, everything being free. Rehearsals will be held once a week from now until the time arrives to assemble musical units for concerts in the city parks next summer.

Need Instruments

It was mentioned during the meeting that residents of Kingston and surrounding communities might like to donate instruments not in use to children who can't afford to buy them. "There are lots of folks who have them stored away and probably would be glad to give them to some deserving youngster," Mrs. Nessel said.

Anyone desiring to donate an instrument may contact members of the committee or leave it as Ross's music store on John street.

Members of the musicians union will alternate as instructors and directors at the weekly rehearsals, and every child will get the attention required to further his or her musical education, it was announced.

Local 215, A.F.M., covers all of Ulster county and a portion of Greene and children from all communities in this territory will be welcome at the rehearsals.

In the West Indies, the bright light given off by the cucumber beetle frequently is mistaken for shooting stars by visitors.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK

As Pegler Sees It

were muckers among the West Pointers in the second war. Chasers who went lallygagging with female drivers from the English pool.

In my day doing West Point football in the era of wonderful nonsense, there were some fine officers on the football establishment. I particularly liked a young lieutenant, a cavalry soldier, name Clovis Byers. Later I was to read of him as a brigadier on some Pacific island, our first general to be wounded, I believe.

A few days ago I read that General Byers was the commander of the parachute soldiers who bailed out of a disabled plane in a hurried jump at Fort Bragg which was such a startling example of discipline and bravery that our people caught their breath in admiration. On that, I wrote General Byers a note of congratulation, recalling old days and inquiring about young man who had been a line coach at West Point. I had heard he was lost in the Pacific war.

Now I have his answer: "Your recent note has gone unanswered because I wanted to get first-hand information about Mo Daly, and could not get it until Trappnell returned."

Trappnell—another football name. "Trap was one of the first D.S.C. men made during the war. He and Mo were prisoners in the same camps. They left the Philippines on Dec. 13, 1944, scheduled to go to a prison camp in Manchuria. Their ship was sunk off Alongapo. Trap and Mo were among the survivors and were put on a second ship. This was sunk off Formosa, near Picau. They were once more rescued. Trap said they were facing bitter cold on the third ship, both badly undernourished and suffering from exposure. They were lying as close to one another as possible to derive heat from each other's bodies when Trap noticed that Mo did not answer a question. He thought Mo was asleep. It was not until some time later that Trap realized that the sleep was an everlasting one.

"Trap is doing a superlative job as regimental commander of the 505th Airborne Infantry in which Sergeant Hodgkiss is a soldier. I am fully aware of the rare bit of fortune which is mine to command an outfit which has so many men of the type I have just been discussing." Sergeant Hodgkiss ran the jump in which 33 soldiers quickly got out at low altitude, and then sat back and braced himself because it was now too late for him to go. He was not hurt. Two fliers were killed. Not all is gold that glistens, but neither is all the brass just brass. (Copyright, 1949, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Weber Is Injured
Edward Weber of West Hurley was injured slightly when struck by an auto on St. James street near Broadway this morning. William W. Watts, 153 East Chester street, reported to the police at 7:45 a. m. that while he was driving his sedan west on St. James street, it came in contact with Weber, who had left another car to cross St. James street. Weber suffered injuries to the shins, he said.

School-Building Program
DuPont Street,
Kingston, N. Y.
February 7, 1949

Editor, The Freeman:

I believe the taxpayers of this city should take a pretty close look at the proposed school-building program. The theme of the whole thing seems to be this: "The registration in our schools is falling off, so let's build new schools." It's just as though a grocer were to say, "I'm losing customers every day—I'd better increase my over-head."

In brief, Kingston is on the verge of spending its way into a beautiful headache. Let us face the facts: Kingston is a stagnant city. It makes no effort to build up prosperity for its people—never has. Anyone who proposes bringing a new industry into the city gets the deep-freeze treatment. Let's be consistent. If we want to become the deserted village let us refrain from spending our money on highly dubious projects.

Why do you suppose the schools registrations are falling off—as much as 42 per cent, according to the Freeman articles? The reason isn't hard to find. When our young people reach the point of earning a living and raising a family they move elsewhere. That trend is evidently going to continue. Are we to wind up with a lot of expensive white elephants eating up our taxes?

We are, to put it bluntly, trying to ape the school programs of more prosperous cities. We are coddling up to the theory of education that everything in a school building is more important than teaching. It reminds me of the old cabinet-maker who said: "The man who can't do a good job, always does a fancy job." Our teachers, on the whole, are doing a good job of imparting sound basic education to children. I doubt very much that they need—or want—the tawdry tinsel, the gadgets, the chrome-plated bunk that passes for "progressive" education.

Take a case in point: No. 1 School, in Wilbur, has three teachers doing an excellent job. Any parent will verify that fact. They have the time to give each child a good deal of personal attention. The school is compact, comfortable; it has excellent play facilities. Children can walk to and from school; they can go home to lunch if their parents so desire. That being the case, says the city, let's abandon the school. The reason advanced (believe it or not) is this: "It would be cheaper to run a school bus than to run the school." No mention is made of the fact that the Wilbur children would still need a school, classrooms, teachers. The bus isn't taking the place of the school, as the city would have you believe.

We are developing a case of "Keep Up With the Jones" and we can't afford it.

We are at the peak of a material shortage that is going to last for a number of years. Prices are sky-high. Wages of the building trades are the highest they have ever been. Is this the time for us to go overboard?

If it can be demonstrated that our children are being deprived of a good education, that they are being inconvenienced—then by all means let us revamp our school system. But if it can merely be demonstrated that a few people would like a lot of useless educational frills tacked on to the school system—then let us beware.

RAYMOND CONLIN,
35 Du Pont street,
City.

OH, THE HUMILIATION OF IT ALL!

One of the country's best second story men, James J. Fitzpatrick, 85, better known as "Toothpick Charlie," is a humiliated man as he poses for a picture showing how he was pinched by a woman cop—and for stealing nickels! Los Angeles Policewoman Edna Acosta (right) arrested Charlie for emptying telephone coin boxes, thus adding a mortifying chapter to his 50-year-old police record. (A.P. Wirephoto)

Mrs. Harry A. Kutzschbach, chairman, rehabilitation committee, has stated that the auxiliary is particularly anxious to receive Valentine and Easter cards although all types will be acceptable. The collection will end on February 21 and the public is invited to donate one or more cards before that date.

March 13 Is Date Of Winter Concert

Woodstock, Feb. 10.—The attendance at the first of a series of winter concerts given last Sunday in Town Hall surpassed all expectations and proved beyond a doubt that winter residents are anxious to support the project and not have their musical activities restricted to the summer months which has been the pattern for 25 years.

Inez Carroll, pianist; Frank Mele, violinist and Dr. Hans Cohn, cellist, presented a diversified program which the audience received with enthusiastic appreciation. This was particularly true of the Chopin selections which were brilliantly executed by Inez Carroll, during the first half of the program which also included the works of Couperin, Bach and Debussy.

Following the intermission the artists presented with fine understanding in their interpretation, the Tchaikowsky Trio, Opus 50. Houston Richards announced that the next concert would be given on Sunday afternoon, March 13. He also stated that it was not too early to start planning for next year and if a sufficient number of persons indicated their willingness to support a winter musical group, arrangements would be made for it. He asked that individual expressions in this regard be made to Dr. Cohn.

Chairmanship Discussed

Washington, Feb. 10 (AP)—New York House Republicans dis-possibility that one of their num-

The speculation—and it was ad-

Device May Aid Blind, Replace Cane

Schenectady, N. Y., Feb. 10 (AP)—

An electronic device, carried in the hand like a flashlight, may eventually replace the tapping cane in guiding the blind.

Dr. Caryl P. Haskins, who has research laboratories at Union College, Schenectady, and in New York city, says the electronic flashlight and a pencil-like device to aid the blind in reading already have been produced in crude form.

Haskins described the devices in a radio broadcast (WGY, WGFM) last night.

The flashlight-like device was described by Haskins as "an echoing device, something like radar in principle but using super-sonic sound."

London, Feb. 10 (AP)—Yugoslavia sent a spokesman to the London meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers' deputies today to press her Russian-supported claims on Austria. Some observers were surprised yesterday as Russia ignored her rift with the "heretic" Communist government of Premier Marshall Tito to back Yugoslav demands.

Sicklers Rout Liberty 64 to 44; Locals Are in Fourth Place Tie

Sickler's Colonials moved into a fourth place tie in the Orange-Sullivan Basketball League on Wednesday night after drubbing the Liberty Indians by 64 to 44 in a high-scoring game at the municipal auditorium.

Last night's triumph shoved the local basketball team into a two-way tie for fourth place with Newburgh. Both clubs have chalked up six wins as against the same number of setbacks. It was Liberty's eighth setback in 10 starts.

Last night's final home game of the regular O-S season pried only about 25 paid admissions through the turnstiles. Everyone was conspicuous by his presence. As a result of Wednesday's victory, the Colonials are still very much in the running for a Shaughnessy playoff berth. The first four clubs in the league's standings will participate in the post-season playoffs.

Bloom Notches 21
Lanky George Bloom, the Colonial center, sent the locals off winging last night by bucketing 16 points in the first half. He added five more in the final pair of quarters to come out as top scorer of the night with his 21 markers.

Sickler's ran up a 7 to 0 lead in the opening period only to have the visiting Redskins knot the count. After that the Colonials moved out in front and finished in a blaze of glory.

While Bloom and company were keeping the Colonials far out in front, Liberty's main goal-getting was turned in by Charlie Holland, former Liberty High School star, who tossed in 12 points. Allie Hasbrouck, Liberty's great All-DUSO athlete, failed to make an appearance.

The standings:

Russo-Cochron Bout Features Tonight's Local Boxing Card

Mickey Russo, 140, of Highland, who has scored two impressive knockouts in recent boxing shows, is featured in tonight's B'nai B'rith boxing card at the municipal auditorium. Russo has been paired against Dave Cochron of Cleveland, a heavy puncher from the same stable as Pat Simpson.

Russo, a real boxing fighter, kayaked Jimmy Hall of Buffalo in his last appearance January 27. The Highland battler also holds a knockout decision over Chief Davidson.

Other main bouts on tonight's program are as follows:

Jackie Manns, Buffalo heavyweight vs. George Coney, Schenectady slugger.

Vinnie Culla, 126, Los Angeles, Calif., vs. Ray Field, Utica district champion.

Frank Urbanski, 160, Salamanca, vs. Ernie Keith, Buffalo.

Keith replaces Sid Barneson who will be unable to keep his engagement tonight due to a heavy cold.

The three-round preliminaries, scheduled to start at 9 p.m., are: Cecil Henderson, Highland bantamweight vs. Pat Sarri of Schenectady; Julius Jamison, 140, Highland vs. Kenny Williams, Schenectady; Dick Scott, Schenectady featherweight vs. Pat Susavi, Saugerties, who won his first bout two weeks ago by a knockout.

Under O-B Suspension
Gardella, known more for his off-the-field antics such as hanging from a 12th-floor window by his fingertips than for his baseball prowess, is under a five years suspension from organized ball.

In his suit he charged baseball with being a monopoly because of the reserve clause in every contract which binds a player to one club for life unless he is sold, traded or released. He also charged that baseball should be subject to anti-trust laws because of the large fees received by clubs for radio and television rights.

Gardella figures the ban will cost him $100,000. He asked triple damages under anti-trust provisions.

The appeal judges wrote three separate opinions. Only the one by Judge Jerome N. Frank touched directly upon the reserve clause.

He said it "results in something resembling penance of the baseball player. . . . The violator may perhaps become a judge, with a less exciting and often less remunerative occupation, or a bartender or a street playing baseball again and ever so slim."

The reserve clause is regarded as the foundation of baseball contracts. Without it players would be free to bargain with any club of their choice at the end of each season. Wealthy teams could outbid the poorer ones for the best available talent.

Actually, yesterday's action by the appeals court has no direct effect except to permit Gardella's suit to be tried.

Both Promise Appeal
It will be up to a federal district court and then the Supreme Court, since both sides have promised to appeal all the way, to rule on the validity of Gardella's claims.

The reserve clause was vindicated by the Supreme Court in 1922 in a case growing out of the outlaw Federal League. At that time the court found that baseball was not engaged in interstate commerce.

Judge Frank wrote yesterday that the 1922 case had become an "important zombie" because of the advent of television and radio.

Judge Learned Hand wrote that he felt the trial court would have to make a complete investigation into the various sidelines such as radio and television to determine whether they form a large enough portion of the business to make it interstate in character.

Judge Harrie B. Chase, who dissented, wrote that television does not constitute "a difference in kind" from the telegraphic reports which entered into the 1922 opinion.

Baseball leaders generally had little to say about the action. Frank said it looked as if it would take a year to clear up the case. The suit was filed early in 1948.

New Orleans' Bernard Dcussen knocks mustachioed Freddie Dawson loose from his mouth with a right-hand punch to the jaw in the third round in Chicago. The home welterweight took it, however, and bounced back to turn in an upset scoring a technical knockout in the sixth.

Direct Hit

last week as the Goshenites fought to even things with the Jads who defeated them earlier in the season.

Kingston is scheduled to travel to Middletown for an all-important league fray on Tuesday, February 22, in a game which may go a long way in deciding the second half championship.

The Goshen-Middletown score: Goshen (53)—Walker f 10, Christie c 19, McBride c 7, Strong g 4, Price g 13, Gardenbrook g 0, Middletown (36)—Cook f 11, Lakin f 4, Adams c 6, Brown g 6, Kindberg g 7, Miller g 2.

Mountaineers Win
The Ashokan Mountaineers walloped the Phoenix Packers in a preliminary at Ashokan Hall last night by 41-8.

G. Jackson was high with 12 points. Curtis' three led Phoenix.

According to the Middletown Times Herald, the Middletown boys whipped a strong Newburgh squad.

Did you know that Hartwick College, with an enrollment of only 580, is one of the smallest Eastern colleges playing an intercollegiate basketball schedule this season? The Warriors played Lawrence Tech of Detroit, and scored a national upset and then lost to Texas Wesleyan of Fort Worth, Texas.

Flotsam and Jetsam:
Now Faltz High, unbeaten in five games, has moved within a game of the NYSU Basketball league pennant. In case you ever wondered about that NYSU, it means Northern Orange-Southern Ulster counties.

Lofty Gomez will be one of the speakers at the kickoff meeting for the 1949 American Legion junior baseball program in New York on Feb. 19. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis DeGraff and son, Paul, and Mrs. Alfred DeGraff of Glenford are among Ulster county folks trying their luck at deep sea fishing off Bradenton, Fla. Lew recently came up with a five dollar prize for land on the fish-of-the-day, a 40-pound Grouper of the Cleveland Indians. Bill Vecek, call him the best manager in baseball. The next day the boss of the Pirates entered a Pittsburgh hospital for a check-up. I suspect our trouble no doubt.

Bill Vecek's name frequently is misspelled. Maybe this rhyme will help:
Every week, some guy says Vecek,
Says Bill: "By Heck, my name is Vecek!"

DiMaggio Is Worth the Ninety Grand:
If Joe DiMaggio signed for $90,000 he's worth every cent of it by modern standards. Dollar for dollar the fabulous salaries of today are peanuts compared to Babe Ruth's $82,000 in 1931-32. But the Clipper, in addition to being a mechanically superb player, is the only man on the Yankee roster with bucks office appeal.

The Yankees say that the great outfielder has collected $368,559.20 in salary and World Series checks in 10 years of service. Messrs. Webb, Topping and Weiss might well have made DiMag the first hundred grand player in baseball history, an honor he deserves in these days of unprecedented attendance.

But DiMaggio had no quavik. As a matter of fact he has registered only one mild complaint in his long career with the Yankees. "Ed Barrow refused to pay me what I was worth," Di Mag says in one of his rare moods.

A Player to Carry a Ball Club:
Like Babe Ruth, DiMaggio is the type of ball player that can "carry" a team. It is interesting to note that of the 15 pennants the Yanks have won in 28 years, only one was acquired without Babe Ruth or DiMaggio, and that was in a war year.

There was a three-year lapse between Babe Ruth and DiMaggio. As extraordinary as he was, Lou Gehrig could not carry the Yankees. DiMaggio, now 35, stood out the past two campaigns under distressing circumstances. He placed the Yankees to another pennant in 1947, despite an open crescent wound in the rim of his heel, the result of the removal of a spur.

Last season, DiMaggio kept the club in the fight until the next to the last day, while for three weeks playing with the worst charley horse of his career.

DiMaggio is more than a remarkable slugger and run-batted-inner and center fielder to whom pitchers pitch and all hands look up. Joe DiMaggio has carried himself like a champion on and off the field as well. Are you listening, Lou Ted Williams' routers?

The precious 3-year old has just floored his parents with this remark: "I'm getting tired of being called a h-e-l-l of your spelling around me all the time."

Baseball Set to Carry Gardella Case to Supreme Court--Chandler

New York, Feb. 10 (AP)—Organized baseball shook off its historical shyness toward legal action today and prepared to fight the latest attack against its contracts all the way to the Supreme Court.

The legal structure is challenged in a $300,000 damage suit by Danny Gardella, a pint-sized outfielder now banned from baseball because he jumped from the New York Giants to the Mexican League in 1946.

A U. S. Court of Appeals ruled yesterday that the suit may be heard. Commissioner A. B. Chandler, one of the five defendants, said baseball attorneys are ready to go to the Supreme Court if necessary.

The next move is up to the defendants, who besides Chandler are the Giants, President Ford Frick of the National League, President Will Harridge of the American League and President George Trautman of the National Association (minors).

They have 20 days to answer yesterday's ruling. The case had been dismissed last July 14 by Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard. The court split 2-1 in reversing Judge Goddard.

Under O-B Suspension
Gardella, known more for his off-the-field antics such as hanging from a 12th-floor window by his fingertips than for his baseball prowess, is under a five years suspension from organized ball.

In his suit he charged baseball with being a monopoly because of the reserve clause in every contract which binds a player to one club for life unless he is sold, traded or released. He also charged that baseball should be subject to anti-trust laws because of the large fees received by clubs for radio and television rights.

Gardella figures the ban will cost him $100,000. He asked triple damages under anti-trust provisions.

The appeal judges wrote three separate opinions. Only the one by Judge Jerome N. Frank touched directly upon the reserve clause.

He said it "results in something resembling penance of the baseball player. . . . The violator may perhaps become a judge, with a less exciting and often less remunerative occupation, or a bartender or a street playing baseball again and ever so slim."

The reserve clause is regarded as the foundation of baseball contracts. Without it players would be free to bargain with any club of their choice at the end of each season. Wealthy teams could outbid the poorer ones for the best available talent.

Actually, yesterday's action by the appeals court has no direct effect except to permit Gardella's suit to be tried.

Both Promise Appeal
It will be up to a federal district court and then the Supreme Court, since both sides have promised to appeal all the way, to rule on the validity of Gardella's claims.

The reserve clause was vindicated by the Supreme Court in 1922 in a case growing out of the outlaw Federal League. At that time the court found that baseball was not engaged in interstate commerce.

Judge Frank wrote yesterday that the 1922 case had become an "important zombie" because of the advent of television and radio.

Judge Learned Hand wrote that he felt the trial court would have to make a complete investigation into the various sidelines such as radio and television to determine whether they form a large enough portion of the business to make it interstate in character.

Judge Harrie B. Chase, who dissented, wrote that television does not constitute "a difference in kind" from the telegraphic reports which entered into the 1922 opinion.

Baseball leaders generally had little to say about the action. Frank said it looked as if it would take a year to clear up the case. The suit was filed early in 1948.

Belgian Is Killed On Placid Run

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 10 (AP)—A Belgian bobsled driver was reported killed today when his sled shot over a curve on the Mt. Van Hoevenberg run.
Conservation officials reported that Max Houben died within an hour and a half after the accident.
Brakeman Jack Mouvet was injured. There was no immediate report on the nature or extent of his injuries.

The accident occurred during a practice run in preparation for the world championships, which begin Saturday. Houben apparently misjudged his course on the sharp, steeply banked turn and the sled went over the rim.
The Belgians' crackup came shortly after two American sleds, driven by Tuffield La Tour of
